Flood works awarded

Council last week awarded a large package of flood remediation works to contractor G & R Brown & Sons Pty Ltd in the first release of minor to medium-sized jobs to restore roads and bridges damaged in the 31 March flood.

It is anticipated that three more packages will be released to a preferred panel of six contracting companies for quoting and be awarded over the next three to four months. It could then take between six and nine months for the contractors to complete works, weather and site conditions permitting.

These packages of work have been bundled in geographic areas to minimise travel times between jobs and maximise on-the-ground efficiencies. The first package centres on Carool, Crystal Creek and Upper Crystal Creek, Bilambil, Dulguigan, Dungay, Duroby and Upper Duroby, Glengarrie, Nobbys Creek, Tomewin, Tumbulgum and North Tumbulgum. It contains more than 100 damage items and is worth about $1.5 million.

Meanwhile, more than 50 major reconstruction jobs are in various stages of investigation and design. Council is engaging extra contractor resources to get these jobs shovel-ready. Still, these jobs, which account for the bulk of the repair bill at about $16 million, are not expected to start before the end of the year and will take more than two years to complete.

“While it has taken six months to get to this point with a preferred contractor panel in place and work bundled into packages, residents should see a lot more activity shortly and the speed of road and bridge repairs will ramp up,” Coordinator Flood Restoration Nigel Dobson said.

At this stage, Council estimates the flood caused approximately $27 million of damage to roads and bridges. To date, 900 minor road and bridge damage items have been repaired at a cost of $5.2 million.

Under current estimates, Council expects to recover $18.3 million of its roads bill through Natural Disaster Relief and Recovery Assistance (NDRRA) and grant funding, leaving a possible shortfall of $8.7 million to be funded from Council’s future operating and capital budgets. These figures may change as we firm up damage estimates, work to maximise funding opportunities and when NDRRA assessments are completed.

“The Federal Government’s Bridge Renewal Program has granted $2.17 million in funds (50 per cent) towards the replacement of Byrrill Creek Bridge and Council is negotiating with Roads and Maritime Services as to whether disaster relief funding can be used for some of the remaining budget shortfall to get that project happening.”

NDRRA has strict funding rules, including that costs are recoverable only where Council uses contractor resources. That is, Council cannot use its own workforce to repair flood damage.

Bookings open for new on-call clean-up

Bookings are open for residents of households and duplexes that receive Council’s domestic waste collection service to phone or submit online to organise up to two collections of two cubic metres each year, to help clean up large items.

It has replaced the previous biannual kerbside collection, to address problems of illegal dumping that severely impacted on the previous service and drove up the cost to Council and the community.

Tweed renters in houses and duplexes will now have the same opportunity as property owners to make bookings for the new On-Call Household Clean-up for bulk waste items.

“We’ve listened to the feedback from the community and renters who receive Council’s red lid wheelie bin service will no longer need the consent of the property owner or manager to book an On-Call Household Clean-up,” Council’s Coordinator Waste Management, Rod Dawson, said.

Residents in multi-unit properties will still need their property managers to organise consolidated collections for the new service, to avoid having piles of waste at their kerbside for extensive periods of time. Council has contacted multi-unit properties that receive a domestic waste service, to plan a coordinated approach for On-call Household Clean-up collections from these properties.

Provide hot weather relief for our native fauna

The recent spell of hot, dry and windy weather has impacted on the Tweed’s native fauna, particularly birds.

“Tweed Valley Wildlife Carers have been extremely busy responding to call-outs and fauna in need, particularly as this is the time of year when birds are breeding and rearing chicks,” Council’s Threatened Species Project Officer, Tanya Fountain, said.

“Residents can do a few simple things to assist our feathered and furry friends. A bird bath in your front or back yard in a nice shady spot will assist wildlife immensely.

“Ideally keep it in a sheltered shady spot, out of the reach of pets, and with some shrubs or trees nearby for perching. Never submerge a bird bath in the ground as young chicks can drown.

“Keep it topped up and replace the water at least once a week to stop mosses breeding.”

Koala Zones bear results for road safety

A survey has shown a considerable change in driver behaviour since two koala zones were installed on the Tweed Coast, with a significant reduction in vehicle speeds, Council's Senior Program Leader – Biodiversity, Scott Hetherington, said.

"Drivers along Clothiers Creek Road in Bogangar are showing they recognise the need to travel safely through this area of habitat. Ten per cent more drivers are travelling at or below the speed limit, compared to traffic speeds before the koala zone was installed," he said.

"Results from the newest koala zone, entering Pottsville along Coronation Avenue, are even more impressive, with 98 per cent of drivers now travelling at or below the speed limit."

Mr Hetherington said the value of the safer travelling speeds had been clearly shown on several recent occasions, when drivers reported stopping to allow koalas to safely cross the road.

"These results are highly significant because there are many locations where installing fences and koala overpasses or bridges is not possible," he said.

"When this is the case, the only option is to rely on drivers to travel safely and be fully aware that a koala may step out onto the road at any time.

"Council would like to thank Tweed Coast drivers for the care they have shown in these zones."

Sessions seek biodiversity and flying fox feedback

Community feedback is invited on the management of flying-fox camps and biodiversity protection from large-scale development, with two Council documents now on public exhibition.

Community information sessions for the draft Shire-wide Flying-Fox Camp Management Plan and the Draft Biodiversity Development Control Plan will be held throughout the Tweed during the next fortnight:

- Saturday 14 October 8am to noon
Kingscliff Markets, Jack Bayliss Park, Marine Parade
- Tuesday 17 October 2pm to 4pm
Canvas & Kettle Room, Murwillumbah Civic and Cultural Centre
- Wednesday 18 October 5.30pm to 7.30pm
South Sea Islander Room, Tweed Heads Council Administration Building

The Shire-wide Flying-Fox Camp Management Plan, on exhibition until 28 October, will guide efficient and timely responses to manage community impacts from flying-fox camps, while improving the availability of information to residents. Further information is available from Council's Senior Program Leader – Biodiversity, Scott Hetherington - (02) 6670 2561 or shetherington@tweed.nsw.gov.au

The Biodiversity Development Control Plan, being exhibited until 1 December, aims to ensure the planning and design of new larger-scale development to help protect native vegetation and habitats for species in Tweed Shire.

Further information is available from Council's Senior Program Leader – Biodiversity Policy, Mark Kingston - (02) 6670 2593 or mkingston@tweed.nsw.gov.au

Open up about park use

Community feedback is invited on the draft of a new policy to manage commercial recreation activities in the Tweed's public open spaces.

The policy comes in response to the increasing number of commercial recreation activities seeking approval to operate on Tweed Shire parks, beaches and other public open space.

It seeks to address the conflicting demands that have emerged as a result and meet community expectations about the use of public open space.

"While many people participate in these commercial recreation activities, such as boot camps, surf schools, beach equipment hire and commercial markets, others are concerned it can impact on their more traditional uses of these spaces," Council's Open Space Officer, Grahame Burton, said.

The draft Commercial Recreation Activities on Public Open Space Policy is on exhibition until 23 October. For more information, visit www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/OnExhibition

From poverty to well-being

The Tweed Shire Housing and Homelessness Network is holding a Community Well-Being Day at Murwillumbah Community Centre on Wednesday 18 October from 10am to 2pm as part of Anti-Poverty Week.

The event, supported by Council and highlighting issues of poverty and hardship, will be a one-stop shop of services to promote holistic well-being,

"It will include quality-of-life resources to support people experiencing disadvantage in our community," Council's Community Development Officer, Sylvia Roylance, said.

"Services hope to connect with a broader group of people that may still require assistance following the March flood event."

Program nets top talent

A new tennis development program for young indigenous kids in the Tweed is unearthing some wonderful talent.

The Pro One Tennis Academy at Arkinstall Park is running an eight-week program for 12 indigenous children aged seven to 12, with remarkable results.

"They are very coordinated and with little instruction they are really picking up the game. It's quite amazing," Pro One Manager Natasha Kersten said.

"They are super talented but without this program many would not have the opportunity to play."

A $2000 grant from Tennis Australia, through the National Inclusion Program, has enabled the academy to offer the free coaching sessions.

"We chose to target indigenous kids because there were a number of Aboriginal children who were coming to the complex but did not have the money to play," Ms Kersten said. "They helped us contact other kids who might be interested in getting involved."

The program's weekly sessions introduced the kids to fundamental racquet and ball skills.

"This group will be followed by another eight-week program in the fourth school term, then hopefully something next year.

"We will probably open it up to older kids and have two groups going."

Pro One Tennis Academy has managed the regional high performance tennis facility at Tweed Heads South since it opened in May 2015, after Council completed a $7.7 million upgrade of Arkinstall Park.

Boost for Kingscliff beach

Sand supplies on Kingscliff Beach are about to get a boost, with ongoing river dredging set to start deliveries of sand.

A NSW Department of Industry project is dredging 27,000 cubic metres of banked-up sand from between Barneys Point Bridge and the junction with Terranora Inlet, as well as 60,000 cubic metres of clean marine sand from the inlet, to improving boating safety.

The dredging is expected to finish in mid-October, while the beach nourishment at Kingscliff will continue until March, with a short break over Christmas. The carpark north of Kingscliff Beach Bowls Club will be closed throughout this period. The Tweed Heads park at the old tick gates contains infrastructure for the project and also will be closed.

Volunteers sought for mid Tweed River flood recovery

Conservation Volunteers Australia is partnering with Council to rehabilitate flood damaged riparian vegetation on the Tweed River between Uki and Byangum during October and November.

Volunteers are being sought to join Better Earth teams for the Mid Tweed River Flood Recovery project, to restore public land hit hard by the record Cyclone Debbie flooding.

"This is a great opportunity to join in the recovery effort and protect the Tweed River for the future," Conservation Volunteers Australia Regional Manager Neil Taylor said.

"Many sites have been planted and nurtured by the community over numerous years.

"Teams will work four days per week to plant native trees, shrubs and groundcovers on damaged banks to improve habitat for threatened species, reduce environmental weed impacts and restore a critical part of the Tweed drinking water catchment.

"Some flood debris clean-up will also be undertaken at 'Uki beach', a popular swimming spot on the Tweed River."

Recovery work will be held over four periods: 23-26 October, 30 October-2 November, 6-9 November and 13-16 November.

Native plants, materials and coordination of the project will be provided by Council's Natural Resource Management Unit. Volunteers from Uki Residents Association and Friends of Wollumbin Landcare will assist at some sites.

To volunteer for the project, visit the Conservation Volunteers Australia website at <https://bookings.conservationvolunteers.org/project/mid-tweed-river-flood-recovery>

School zone news flash

Motorists are reminded that school goes back this week and 40km/h speed limits will apply in all school zones from 8-9.30am and 2.30-4pm on school days.

Parents and carers are asked to follow the parking rules in school zones to ensure the safety of their children and others.

"Always park and turn legally around schools and avoid dangerous manoeuvres, such as u-turns and three-point turns," said Council Road Safety Officer Alana Brooks.

"The rules are in place to ensure the safety of children who are vulnerable road users because they are small and harder to see and can behave unpredictably on the road.

"Driving slowly in school zones allows motorists extra time to respond if a child does run out on to the road."

Drivers may not be aware that tougher penalties apply for parking and speeding offences within a school zone.

A speeding ticket for travelling 12km/h over the limit (that is, 52km/h) will cost you $346 and up to five demerit points and a parking ticket will cost you $330 and two demerit points.

Eels a slippery issue

This year the cygnets at Lake Kimberley have again fallen prey to the native eel and members of the public have called on Council to remove the eels from the system.

"While the loss of the young swans is very distressing, we should be cautious about intervening in a natural process," said Director Engineering David Oxenham.

"The eel is a native species and removing them from our waterways is difficult.

"There are very few commercial fishermen licensed to catch eels in New South Wales. Their availability and the commercial reality of removing eels often means our requests for the fisherman to catch the eels is to no avail. The total number of eels caught in the system last year resulted in a catch of less than 10. There is a restriction as well on the size of the traps, which limits the size of the eels caught.

"So while it would appear to be a simple solution it is neither simple nor very successful," said Mr Oxenham.

"The most practical way we can help protect cygnets is to stop feeding the birds and allow them to regain their natural feeding habits and instincts or maybe to throw a line in and catch an eel or two ourselves."

Building business resilience in the Tweed

Measures to help Tweed businesses bounce back from extreme weather events, and generally be more profitable, are on the agenda for a free workshop for Tweed business people on Thursday 12 October.

Business owners, managers and staff are invited to the free Tweed Business Roundtable, at Seagulls Club from 5.30-8.30pm, to hear best practice stories and discuss ways to achieve positive economic, social and environmental outcomes.

The workshop, coordinated by Zero Emissions Tweed, will examine ways businesses can create short-term and long-term job opportunities, save money by generating more of their own energy or by minimising waste and reduce the impacts of extreme weather events.

"We will explore how we can work together to build prosperity for the Tweed and individual businesses," one of the speakers, Sustainability Program Leader Deb Firestone, said.

"It will also help us gauge business interest in a zero emissions future for the Tweed," Ms Firestone said.

Guest speakers will include Griffith Centre of Sustainable Enterprise Director Rob Hales, a NSW Department of Planning and Environment representative from its Energy Division, Manuel Weirich, Nortec Small Business Solutions representative Felisimina Jom, Stone and Wood Brewing Company's Sustainability Manager, James Perrin, and Council's Economic Development Officer, Business Liaison, Kym Kranen.

A light supper will be provided and registration is essential to assist with catering. To register, send your name, email and phone number to zeroemissionstweed@gmail.com or text it to 0409 661 334.

This event is supported by the Tweed, Kingscliff and Murwillumbah Chambers of Commerce, Tweed Shire Council, The Department of Planning and Environment, Seagulls Club and Stone and Wood.

Youth Frontiers Showcase

The Youth Frontiers community mentoring program is proud to present The Showcase on Friday 20th October at Banora Point High School from 5.00-6.30pm (for BPHS and Kingscliff HS student participants)

The Showcase will celebrate the achievements of a small group of students from each of these schools together with supportive community members who have provided voluntary mentoring for the students to develop community projects.

They will be joined by school staff, invited guests and interested members of the community including prospective future mentors to share the showcasing of their projects.

This program is coordinated by the non-profit organisation Big Brothers Big Sisters and is supported by the NSW government. The local MPs for Tweed Geoff Provest will be in attendance.

Parents, family members, friends and members of the community are invited to attend The Showcase to acknowledge the efforts of these community minded members of our shire.

Tumbulgum Road update

Construction Supervisor Scott Buckleton talks with Ganger Deni Piccini, while Ethan Crowe and Robert Digman clean up after laying another section of the new 2.5-metre-wide shared-user path at the foot of the amazing coloured wall on Tumbulgum Road, Murwillumbah. Pedestrians and cyclists will be able to use the partly completed path with care this week as the worksite is moved away from the wall towards the river. This week new contractors arrive to start stabilising the riverbank side of the worksite between Sunnyside Lane and Old Ferry Road. Once that work is complete, Council will move in to build the new seven-metre wide road. Weather and site conditions permitting, the new road is expected to be open late this year to early 2018.

NOTIFICATION OF INTEGRATED DEVELOPMENT APPLICATION

Development Application No. DA17/0634

A development application has been lodged by East Coast Village Homes seeking development consent for conversion of a manager's residence to permanent dwelling site, fence at site no. 336, use of alterations to existing administration/office building and use of extension to community building within an existing Manufactured Home Estate at Lot 1 DP 860569; No. 192 Piggabeen Road TWEED HEADS WEST. 'The Destination is Tweed....'

Destination Tweed is pleased to announce the appointment of Rose Wright as acting CEO and would like to thank Bill Tatchell for his commitment and hard work over the past five years. The Board wishes Bill all the best for his future endeavours.

Rose brings with her a wealth of knowledge and has been actively involved with Destination Tweed overseeing the 'Destination Management Plan' to be implemented going forward.

Destination Tweed chair Aymon Gow said: "We've been really happy with the DMP community engagement process, giving us a clear understanding of what the industry and stakeholders need to form a united front to take tourism to the next level."

With the ever growing excitement surrounding the Tweed, including a consistent growth of 20-30 per cent per year in domestic tourism over the past 5 years, it shows that the Tweeds brand, which is predominately nature-based activity, culture and arts, food tourism, sports and events, will continue to develop the destination in to the future.

Destination Tweed is a not-for-profit, independent membership-based organisation responsible for destination marketing and tourism industry and experience development activities. The organisation has a number of contracts to deliver and tourism services, including the partnership with Tweed Shire Council to market and promote the Tweed as a destination

Expressions of interest are now being sought for up to three (3) vacancies on the Destination Tweed Board, with appointees selected via an application process.

The successful candidates will have proven business or community leadership skills, strategic planning and project management experience, understanding of financial governance and show an ongoing commitment to marketing and promotion of tourism for the Tweed.

If you would like further information or would like to submit an expression of interest please contact Destination Tweed CEO, Rose Wright by email at ceo@destinationtweed.com.au.

The completed nomination form and comments addressing the selection criteria should be forwarded by COB on Thursday 19 October 2017.
