Plan to help protect Aboriginal cultural heritage

Do you understand what your legal obligations are in relation to not harming Aboriginal cultural heritage as part of any development or where you might find Aboriginal cultural heritage in the Tweed? Would you like to know more about the new shire-wide planning policy prepared to protect Tweed's Aboriginal cultural heritage?

Tweed Shire Council has prepared a draft Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Management Plan (ACHMP), which identifies and maps the landscape locations of Aboriginal cultural heritage and provides a framework for the consideration and assessment of Aboriginal cultural heritage as part of all development applications within these mapped locations.

Council has worked closely with the Aboriginal community through the Tweed Byron Local Aboriginal Land Council (TBLALC) and the Aboriginal Advisory Committee on the development of the ACHMP. The management plan reflects the wishes of the Aboriginal community with respect of their cultural heritage.

The ACHMP is based on current legislation. While this legislation has been in place for some time, it is not widely understood or followed. The management plan seeks to shine a light on these legislative requirements to ensure property owners and people undertaking development have the right information to both understand and meet their legal obligations.

You are encouraged to attend one of the many information sessions being held throughout the shire over the coming weeks.

Members of the Tweed Byron Local Aboriginal Land Council will join

Council Strategic Planning staff at the information sessions to help answer questions.

The community sessions will be held at:

- Uki Community Hall – Wednesday 8 November, 5–6.30pm
- Burringbar School of Arts Hall – Wednesday 15 November, 2–3.30pm
- Murwillumbah Civic Centre's Canvas and Kettle Meeting Room – Tuesday 21 November, 5–6.30pm
- Tyalgum Community Hall – Wednesday 22 November, 5–6.30pm
- Pottsville Neighbourhood Centre – Monday 27 November, 5–6.30pm
- Kingscliff Beach Bowls Club – Wednesday 29 November, 5–6.30pm
- Minjungbal Museum – Thursday 30 November, 2–4pm
- Piggabeen Hall – Tuesday 5 December, 5–6.30pm
- Chillingham Community Hall – Wednesday 6 December, 5–6.30pm

Additional sessions will be aimed specifically at industry and professionals in fields such as planning, architecture, surveying and environmental management. They will be held at:

- Murwillumbah's Canvas and Kettle room on Monday, 6 November from 4pm to 6pm
- Tweed Heads Civic and Cultural Centre's South Sea Islander Room on Tuesday, 14 November from 4pm to 6pm.

For more information on the information sessions and the ACHMP, visit www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/Heritage#ACH

Wipes remain after months

Three months on (below right): Customer Service Officer Simone Pauley discovers all the wipes – branded flushable, non-flushable and biodegradable – are still fully intact after three months in the water. The toilet paper broke down immediately with shaking, similar to the agitation that would occur with flushing and moving through the sewer. Residents are encouraged to undertake their own simple experiment to debunk the marketing myth that wipes can be flushed. While the wipe disappears with flushing, it does not break down in the sewer system and causes blockages that cost water ratepayers dearly.

Zombies walk the town

Murwillumbah's zombie walk for Halloween attracted a staggering response, with around 70 zombies and their companions lurching and groaning from Tweed Regional Museum to the Murwillumbah Civic and Cultural Centre on Tuesday 31 October. The 'undead for a day' included Danny John (left) and his sons Sonny and Billy (right), while the clever-wielding Jarrah James-Heggie was joined by his father Adam Heggie. The zombie walk was one of several community events being held by the Museum as part of the Tweed on Film, which continues until 25 November. For more information, visit museum.tweed.nsw.gov.au

Public told to keep out of fox trap and bait areas

Fox trapping is being undertaken in priority bushland areas this week to assist the breeding of threatened local fauna.

Soft-jaw trapping is being carried out from 6 November to 11 November at three sites: Bogangar, Pottsville and the Fingal Peninsula.

"The trapping will be timed to reduce fox numbers, particularly during breeding periods for a number of endangered species, including Bush Stone-curlews, Beach Stone-curlews and the approaching nesting season for Green and Loggerhead Turtles," Council's Program Leader – Pest Management, Pamela Gray, said.

"Foxes pose a serious threat to native fauna and the trapping sites have been identified by detector dog surveys and ongoing camera monitoring as hot spots for fox activity."

Public access to all three trapping sites is prohibited between 6 November and 11 November and all tracks leading into the trapping areas are clearly signposted.

"Owners will be responsible for keeping their pet dogs out of the areas. Any domestic pets caught in the traps will be taken to the Tweed Shire Council pound," Ms Gray said.

"The trapping is being implemented in conjunction with a 1080 fox-baiting program that began on the Tweed Coast in August and continues until 31 January 2018."

The project has been assisted by the NSW Government through its Environmental Trust and Public Reserves Management Fund Programs.

For further information on the fox trapping program, contact Council's Program Leader – Pest Management, Pam Gray, on (02) 6670 2400.

Police investigate Tennis Terranora clubhouse blaze

At time of printing, police investigations were continuing into a fire at Tennis Terranora, Joan Nicholl Tennis Centre in the early hours of last Friday morning.

Tennis Terranora activities were temporarily suspended on Friday while the investigation is underway, but club hopes to be up and running as soon as possible.

Council's Unit Coordinator Recreation Services Matt McCann said disappointed club members gathered at the site early on Friday morning.

"In my brief discussion with the club their disappointment was apparent, however we have a resilient community and no one was injured," Mr McCann said.

The clubhouse at Joan Nicholl Tennis Centre after the fire.

"We don't yet know the cause of the fire but if anyone has any information about suspicious activity or anything else relating to this fire, we ask them to contact Tweed Heads Police as soon as possible."

The council-owned toilet facility – which is shared between the club and the neighbouring parkland – was spared by the fire.

Due to the public safety risk surrounding the present state of the building, Council has arranged temporary fencing to be installed preventing access into and adjacent to the damaged building.

Fortunately, the playing courts seem to be undamaged so Council will arrange the supply of two portable toilets to assist the club and members to return to playing as soon as possible.

Arrangements are being taken to disconnect live power at the site making it safe for public use.

Happenings at your library

A workshop to help carers improve their lives, and the lives of their loved ones, will be held at Murwillumbah Library on Thursday 30 November at 10am.

A Resilient Life, presented by Chad Walkaden, addresses challenges experienced by carers and provides an opportunity for carers to come together to learn about four key points that can help them and their loved ones. Bookings are essential by phoning Murwillumbah Library on (02) 6670 2427.

Are you learning English? Join Murwillumbah Library's English Conversation Group. This group is aimed at people from non-English speaking backgrounds who wish to improve their English speaking skills. Meeting each Wednesday at 10am in Murwillumbah Library.

Cat got your tongue?

By day, treasured feline Skye is a sometimes cuddly, sometimes aloof companion always willing to assist with hanging out the washing. By night she transforms into a fearsome rat hunter but also a formidable street fighter.

So her owner, Murwillumbah resident Chris Peate tries to keep his cat inside at night, after adopting her from the RSPCA a few years ago.

Fellow Murwillumbah resident Edna admits her cat Tiger has the run of the house, with plenty of toys to play with, cardboard boxes to sleep in and newspapers to rip up. Edna says she keeps her rescue cat inside at all times to ensure she is safe from the busy road near her house.

"I wouldn't know what to do without her. She is such great company and is always waiting at the door to greet me when I come home from work," Edna said.

Edna and Chris are two of the many Tweed residents who have responded to Council's Love Cats Love Wildlife community survey, which has been extended to 27 November to allow more people to provide their input.

The survey, funded by the NSW Environmental Trust, is the second in a series of questionnaires by Council to help shape future animal welfare education programs for the Tweed community.

It is open to all Tweed residents, not just cat owners, and takes about 15 minutes to complete.

The survey can be completed online by visiting Hots Topics on Council's website. Printed copies are available at Council offices, Tweed libraries and some veterinary surgeries.

Residents who complete the survey and provide their name and contact details will go into a draw for a $25 gift voucher.

Participants can also learn about the Tweed's 'citizen science' Cat Tracker project starting early next year.

PAMPing to pedestrians

Council contractors start work this month on the first of six footpaths to be built by the end of June next year.

The six footpaths will be built at a cost of about $150,000.

The first 1.2-metre wide path will run for 400 metres along Dry Dock Road, between Cox Drive and Sunshine Avenue, Tweed Heads South.

The other paths to be prioritised for delivery under Council's Pedestrian Access and Mobility Plan (PAMP) are at:

- Greenvale Court, Burringbar (270m)
- Machinery Drive, Tweed Heads South (330m)
- Orient Street, Kingscliff (small section)
- Marine Parade, Kingscliff (small section), and
- Fraser Drive and Dry Dock Road intersection, Tweed Heads South (small section).

Construction will be undertaken by a private contractor and supervised by Council.

This is the first year of Council's approved four-year footpath program in which the highest priority PAMP projects will be built.

Three-year program returning nature to its former glory

A three-year project to restore 25 hectares of bushland on private land at Numinbah is entering its final stages, with plant diversity trebling in some areas.

“There has been prolific regeneration of native species through the Numinbah Nature Links program, which has brought landholders and Council together to conserve threatened flora and fauna in Tweed Shire,” Council’s Project Officer – Biodiversity, Michael Corke, said.

He said the project, funded by the NSW Environmental Trust and Council, is on track to meet its targets.

“This is a great result because the project area, within the Pat Smiths Creek and Couchy Creek catchments, is rugged and heavily weed-infested,” Mr Corke said.

The area is part of a regional fauna corridor linking the World Heritage-listed Springbrook National Park and Numinbah Nature Reserve with Wollumbin National Park. These national parks are internationally recognised for their biodiversity, including rare and threatened species.

Bush regenerators and landholders are controlling dense infestations of Lantana, Giant Devils Fig, Kudzu and other weeds, including a severe infestation of the invasive ornamental tree Pink Cedar on one property.

“Until now, weeds have suppressed rainforest regeneration and threatened the viability of threatened plant species. However, systematic initial and follow-up weed control has led to dramatic results,” he said.

“After two years of weed control, most work sites are now covered in pioneer native species.

“Growth rates are phenomenal, with many saplings well over head high. Threatened species are growing with renewed vigour because they no longer have to compete with weeds.

“The final year of the project will involve follow-up weed control to capitalise on these promising results. If current regeneration trends continue, full canopy closure is likely at most sites within three or four years and sites should only require basic maintenance.”

Mr Corke said the project had also improved landholder’s plant identification skills and weed-control techniques.

“By applying their skills and knowledge, landholders will play a pivotal role in long-term site management, with ongoing Council support,” he said.

“As part of the project’s high emphasis on public education, a community education day was held during the second year to increase awareness of the biodiversity values of our local World Heritage-listed national parks.

“It attracted 46 people and will be repeated in May 2018, with plans for a work site tour or a guided rainforest walk.”

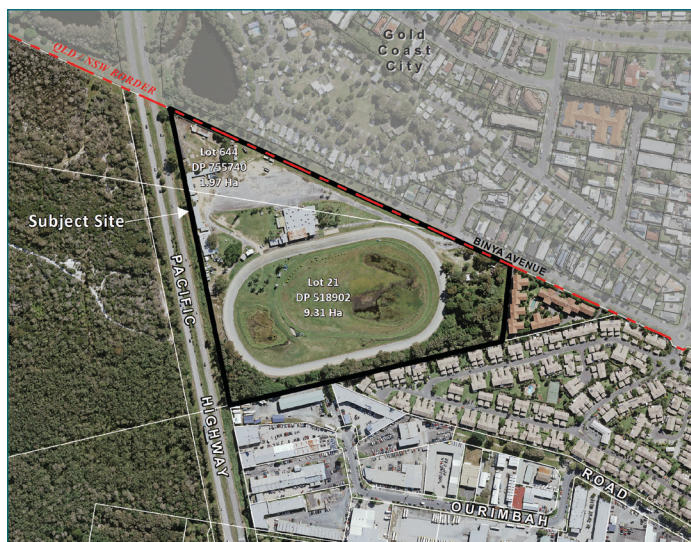

For more information about the project, contact Michael Corke on (02) 6670 2595 or mcorke@tweed.nsw.gov.au

KINGSCLIFF FORESHORE PARK NAMING

Kingscliff's new central park is scheduled to open in March 2018 and Council is inviting community members to suggest possible names for the park.

Council's meeting on 26 October 2017 resolved to consider renaming the park to give it a title that represents the character of the area and to invite submissions from the Tweed community and the Aboriginal Advisory Committee.

Proposed names must meet a few criteria outlined in the Naming of Council Public Parks and Sportsfields Policy.

Under the assessment criteria, if a park is named after a person, that person must have:

- made a significant and long-term contribution to Tweed Shire
- a documented historical link with the locality or made a significant contribution to the social, economic, sporting or cultural development of the community
- lived in Tweed Shire

In accordance with the Geographical Names Board, names of people still alive cannot be considered.

Names can also refer to locally occurring indigenous flora or fauna or other descriptive elements that relate directly to Tweed Shire.

Suggestions can be emailed to tsc@tweed.nsw.gov.au, with the subject 'Kingscliff Foreshore Park naming', or sent by mail to:
