Homelessness priority youth concern

The first meeting of the 2018 Tweed Shire Youth Council has been held with members outlining their concerns and goals for the year ahead.

The Youth Council, now in its third year, is an initiative of the Tweed Shire Youth Strategy and Action Plan 2013-2017.

It is made up of representatives from public and private high schools in Tweed Shire and meets every school term to express views on youth matters, while also providing opportunities for the development of communication, confidence and leadership skills.

Jazmine Cook, of Tweed River High School, was elected as Chair at the meeting and said she was looking forward to the experience.

"I decided to join the Youth Council to gain more knowledge and experience of how a council works and also to hopefully make a difference in our community," Jazmine said.

"I feel the group we have this year is very strong and I think we may be able to make a difference in youth homelessness and mental illness in the youth community."

Jaime Coetzee, of Lindisfarne Anglican Grammar School, was elected Deputy Chair and also spoke about her desire to have a positive impact.

"I am hoping to assist with the prevalent issue of homelessness in the Tweed," Jaime said.

"I am also excited to understand how the Tweed Shire Council operates and makes their decisions."

Council General Manager Troy Green was on hand to welcome the group and asked each member directly what youth-oriented services they would like to see established or improved in the local area.

Council Families and Youth Development Officer Sylvia Roylance said the group's answers, which ranged from transport to mental health and homeless services, showed them to be engaged members of the community.

"On first impression they are all very insightful as to what is going on in their community and definitely full of energy and confidence," Ms Roylance said.

"The Youth Council is a great way to expose young people to a formal meeting environment and gives a lot of insight into how local government works, potentially opening up career pathways they may not have been aware of."

"As we enter the third year of the program it is great to see the support these young people are receiving from their schools which are now starting to see the impact of the program as an extension of the leadership roles they encourage students to take on."

The 2018 Tweed Shire Youth Council is made up of: Jazmine Cook – Chair, Corey Cox and Matthew Lewis (Tweed River High School), Jaime Coetzee – Deputy Chair (Lindisfarne Anglican Grammar School), Nava Bergman, Ethan Graham and Jasper Tiffen (Murwillumbah High School), Chloe Palin and Zoe Nethery (St Joseph's College), Hannah Carmody and Jessica Maloney (Wollumbin High School) and Jack Lee and Joshua Carpenter (Banora Point High School).

Koalas need our help – become a Koala Watcher

Friends of the Koala is calling for Tweed locals to become Koala Watchers and is holding a free workshop to show them how to do it.

The workshop will be held in the Canvas and Kettle Room at the Murwillumbah Civic and Cultural Centre Murwillumbah on Saturday 17 March from 9.30am to 12.30pm.

Koala Care Coordinator Susannah Keogh, who will be delivering the workshop, said Koala Watchers played an important role.

"Early reporting of koalas in need of care improves their chances of successful treatment, rehabilitation and release back into their natural habitat," Ms Keogh said.

The workshop will provide information on becoming a koala watcher, including recognising the signs of healthy, sick, injured and distressed koalas.

It will also focus on what you can do to help support a healthy koala population in your local community.

Council's Biodiversity Projects and Planning Officer Marama Hopkins said this was a workshop that would give people the skills to make a real difference.

"We're always asking Tweed residents to keep an eye out for koalas and to report them when they see them," Ms Hopkins said.

"Unfortunately, injury and disease is always going to be an issue for our koalas and it's sometimes hard to tell, but being able to identify when a koala needs help and getting that help early can mean the difference between life and death for that animal."

To register for the workshop or for more information contact Friends of the Koala on (02) 6621 4664, Maria Matthes on 0467 855 990 or maria@healinghistory.com.au. Refreshments will be provided. Koala Watch is a NSW Environmental Trust Project.

In brief ...

Relieve for suppliers during April

The upcoming Commonwealth Games will most likely make deliveries more difficult for some businesses in the Tweed.

In recognition of the likely traffic delays, Council has decided to take no compliance action against suppliers receiving deliveries of goods outside of their normal delivery hours for the period 1 April to 30 April 2018.

This decision was made at the 1 March Council meeting.

Have a chat with your neighbour

As mentioned last week, Council is getting behind Neighbour Day on Sunday 25 March and would love for you to get involved too.

Tweed residents can take part by spending time with one or more neighbours, with suggestions ranging from cups of tea to parties in front yards, or at a local park.

Planning your event has been made easy with everything you need at the Neighbour Day website www.neighbourday.org including posters, invitations, connection cards, selfie signs and a how to guide.

The first 20 Tweed residents to register their Neighbour Day activity on Council's Facebook event and complete the quick survey (or by calling (02) 6670 2567) will receive $50 vouchers to spend at local businesses to use to cover costs of your activity.

GPS to track Tweed puss in boots

Cat owners are invited to participate in a study to find out exactly how far our feline friends wander from home.

Tweed Shire Council has partnered with the University of South Australia as part of a nationwide Cat Tracker study, using GPS units to map out exactly where cats roam.

Council Project Officer Jude Mason, who is coordinating the Love Cats Love Wildlife project, said the Cat Tracker study would provide valuable information and probably surprise people.

"Cat owners want to know more about their cats," Ms Mason said.

"They don't know where their cats go and it's a missing bit of information when owners are making decisions about the care of their cats.

"Similar studies have shown that even otherwise docile house cats can range over a very wide area and some owners might be in for quite a shock.

"Places in the study are limited but you can make a contribution just by completing the cat tracking survey on their website."

More than 600 Tweed residents took the time to complete the recent Love Cats Love Wildlife survey, providing insight into cat activity in our community.

The survey is part of a project being undertaken collaboratively by Tweed Shire Council and the NSW Environmental Trust and the results will help shape this project and future animal welfare education programs for the community.

"Key findings of the survey show that there is a general awareness across the community that cats do have a negative impact on wildlife and that by keeping cats at home – either indoors in a safe cat enclosure or in a cat escape-proof yard – wildlife is protected," Ms Mason said.

"Cat safety was high on the list of benefits of cats kept at home and many residents have made their own 'catios' or cat patios to keep them safe."

One of those is Tweed resident Jan Lobban who has enclosed her veranda as a cat run for her much loved companions Bruno and Madeleine.

"We made the decision after one cat was attacked by a feral cat and bitten by a snake," Ms Lobban said.

State give the OK to buying flood risk houses

The State Government has approved new and expanded Voluntary House Purchase (VHP) schemes following the March 2017 flood. The schemes will focus on the worst affected residential areas of South Murwillumbah, Bray Park, Burringbar, Mooball and Crabbes Creek.

The main aim of the scheme is to permanently remove at-risk people from high flood hazard areas (areas with high flood depths and velocities) by buying their houses. The properties are then back-zoned for more flood compatible uses, such as parkland or farming.

"Voluntary House Purchase was a recommendation of Council's Floodplain Risk Management Studies completed in 2014 and 2015 as there are no feasible alternatives to protect these areas from flood risk, such as levees or improved evacuation access," Manager Roads and Stormwater Danny Rose said.

"Our studies also considered including other flood-prone villages, such as Condong and Tumbulgum, in a VHP scheme but they were not recommended for the initial schemes."

Prior to the flood, Council had one VHP scheme operating along the Tweed River in parts of River Street, South Murwillumbah, with four houses still eligible for purchase. Properties purchased have been turned into open space for the community.

Council is currently reviewing its flood data with the Office of Environment and Heritage (OEH) to identify and prioritise those people and their homes most at risk in major floods.

"We cannot purchase every flood-affected house in the eligible areas so we will target those houses where we can get the most benefit in terms of improving safety and minimising losses during floods.

"We also need to be mindful of an area's potential, if freed up, to allow for safer flood flows or what other use it could serve in improving our flood management."

The VHP scheme will take many years to roll out.

"It is very early days but once we have identified the individual homes we want to buy, we will speak directly with the homeowners to see if they are interested in selling. If they choose not to, we will move to the next house on our priority list."

Under VHP schemes, the price paid for a home (compensation) is determined by an independent valuer with OEH paying two-thirds of the price and Council picking up the remainder.

While there is no application process for homeowners, anyone who wishes to express an interest in participating in the VHP scheme can email their property and contact details to tsc@tweed.nsw.gov.au or write to PO Box 816 Murwillumbah NSW 2484.

OEH also approved new Voluntary House Raising (VHR) schemes for these same areas, focusing on lower hazard properties where reducing personal losses is the priority. More information will be provided regarding VHR schemes as they develop.

Further information on how these schemes work can be found on Council's website at www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/VHPVHR and OEH's websites.

Last chance at MOAC

Time is running out to view 'Duxford Street Interiors' at the Margaret Olley Art Centre at Tweed Regional Gallery in Murwillumbah. The exhibition finishes on Sunday 18 March.

The interiors of Olley's Victorian terrace and the adjoining Hat Factory were subject matter for her paintings for over four decades.

She allowed a select few artist friends to also work in 48 Duxford Street – Justin O'Brien, Cressida Campbell and Nicholas Harding. This exhibition brings together Duxford Street interiors by each of these artists, alongside Olley's own.

From 21 March until 29 March there will be no exhibition in the Margaret Olley Art Centre – however visitors can still enjoy the extraordinary re-creation of Margaret Olley's home studio.

Meanwhile, 'A Painter's House' opens in the Margaret Olley Art Centre on Friday 30 March and will be on display until 7 October.

The Tweed Regional Gallery has invited four contemporary painters to explore objects and things within Olley's home studio re-creation. Spending time in the Gallery's Nancy Fairfax Artist in Residence Studio, each artist has responded to the re-creation from the perspective of their own practice.

Responses will be exhibited alongside paintings by Margaret Olley. The exhibition also includes loans from the Art Gallery of New South Wales, the University of Queensland Art Museum and private collections, as well as works from the Tweed Regional Gallery collection.

To complement this exhibition the Gallery will present an engaging program of activities and events. Keep reading the tweed Link for details or visit <http://artgallery.tweed.nsw.gov.au>
