Smart art protecting Fingal fauna

A special message about the importance of keeping pets contained has added a splash of colour to the Fingal Head community.

The colour comes from a series of posters designed by students of Fingal Head Public School as part of Tweed Shire Council's 'Working Together to Protect Threatened Fauna on Fingal Peninsula' project funded by the NSW Environmental Trust.

The art works have been digitally scanned, applied to large aluminium panels and mounted on buildings in picnic areas and in Fingal's Tweed Coast Holiday Park.

Tweed Shire Council Director Community and Natural Resources Tracey Stinson said the project was a fun, inspiring and artistic way to educate students, locals and visitors about this precious local environment.

"Fingal is home to many threatened birds and animals that are at risk of extinction and the students have created simple and very powerful images to help save them through art," Ms Stinson said.

"It is great to see young students getting involved in a project like this and so clearly conveying these important environmental messages."

After learning about Fingal's local native animals, the threats they face for survival and how they can help them, the students created colourful paintings and messages to share with the community.

Fingal Head Public School Principal Christine Marshall said the goal was to get people talking.

"Hopefully the paintings will create conversations in the community around the theme of protecting native fauna and how simple actions can save many of these creatures from the brink of extinction," Ms Marshall said.

"The students' messages show that they have learnt much about the many threats facing our wildlife.

"Positive messages about what to do about unleashed domestic dogs, free roaming pet cats, litter and discarded fishing line on the beach accompany many of the paintings."

Up-and-coming artists to perform at MC² Kingscliff

One of the Tweed's top up-and-coming live acts will be among the performers taking part in the first of a proposed series of mini festivals highlighting local music.

The first Musicians Connecting Communities or MC² event, will be held in venues around Kingscliff on Saturday 28 April.

The line-up includes North Tumbulgum-based duo Salt and Steel, winners of the Buskers by the Creek competition on the Gold Coast in 2016 and named Most Deserving Band on the busking stage at Bluesfest in 2017.

The high energy folk/rock/roots duo, percussionist Elle Steele and guitarist/vocalist Briony Edgar, have recently started touring in support of their debut EP Breathe. Connect. Grow.

"We've been down to Sydney and back and have recently been playing in the athlete's village and other venues around the Gold Coast, the next part of the plan is to head north," Elle said.

"We're just blessed to be able to play original music and to find audiences everywhere who appreciate what we are doing and encourage us to keep going."

"There are so many amazing local musicians and we are so lucky to live in an area like this where we get such a high level of support," Briony said.

"Having a showcase like this for local artists is just a great way to bring people together."

Other artists performing for free on the day include Juzzie Smith, Dan Hannaford, Honeymoon, The Mangrove Jack Band, Bronte

Elle Steele (left) and Briony Edgar (right) of Salt and Steel with manager of the Art Shelter Café, Fernanda Icasuriaga (centre).

Perkinson, Andy Jans-Brown and Jorge Pereira and Mel Scarlett.

Fernanda Icasuriaga, manager of the Art Shelter Café, said they were looking forward to the festival.

"This is something which has never been done in Kingscliff before and we are looking forward to a big day of music," she said.

"Part of our goal as a business is to support local artists and help bring culture into our community, so we are so happy to be involved."

No choice in road closures

Council contractors are beginning to close a number of shire roads to repair damage from the March 2017 flood.

Some of these closures may leave residents upstream of the damage site isolated, possibly for a few days, if there are no alternative access routes available.

While every effort is made to avoid isolating a community, in some cases it cannot be avoided and Council is urging residents to be prepared for any upcoming closure and make their own arrangements to manage the situation.

The Council contractor undertaking the works is providing as much advance notice of a closure to residents as possible. Council is supporting those efforts through media and Facebook posts and its regular Road Wrap listing on the website.

"If there is a possibility of providing an alternate access route while bridges and culverts are being replaced, that will be done," Manager Infrastructure Delivery Tim Mackney said. "But on some roads, such as Geles Road at Upper Burringbar, there is no alternative route which Council can approve for use.

"Our contractors are aware of the inconvenience a full closure causes and will work as quickly as possible to get the bridge or culvert replaced, repaired and reopened.

"As soon as the contractor can allow vehicles to pass through a worksite safely, they will assist their passage."

The contractor also will ensure rubbish bins are picked up and transported across the worksite and back, if necessary.

In the event that an emergency services vehicles has to get through a worksite, the contractors will make that happen.

The road closures that may isolate communities are on those roads where communities were cut off by the floods, mostly in the upper reaches on winding, narrow and steep shire roads.

For upcoming road closures, see Road Wrap in this issue of the Tweed Link.

The photograph does not show the real extent of the damage of this bridge on Geles Road at Upper Burringbar. The abutment needs to be replaced, the wing walls stabilised and repaired, the concrete apron reinstated and then the road approaches repaired.

Get in tune with copyright

All local musicians are invited to a free music industry discussion Council is organising in Tweed Heads next week.

The discussion will take place in the Harvard Room of the Tweed Heads Civic and Cultural Centre from 4-6pm on Tuesday 24 April.

A representative from APRA AMCOS, the body that administers royalties and advocates on behalf of musicians' rights in Australia, will be on hand to give a presentation for songwriters and composers.

The presentation will cover issues such as copyright, royalties and the work of APRA AMCOS more generally.

The event is being organised as part of the Musicians Connecting Communities, or MC², aimed at supporting musicians in the Tweed community.

Saturday marks official opening of Kingscliff park

The new Rowan Robinson Park on the Kingscliff foreshore will be officially opened in a locally themed ceremony this weekend.

The ceremony will be held in the park on Saturday 21 April, featuring performances from young Kingscliff students who will hopefully go on to enjoy the park for decades to come.

The new park, which has been fully open for community use for the past month, is the centrepiece of the $22 million foreshore redevelopment project which has also included a new stabilising rock wall and the relocation of the holiday park.

The park opening event is scheduled for 9am to 1pm with formal proceedings starting at 10am.

Tweed Shire Council Manager Recreation Services Stewart Brawley said the official opening marks a significant milestone in the redevelopment of the Kingscliff beachfront.

“Rowan Robinson Park will be at the heart of the Kingscliff community long into the future and we wanted to ensure the first gathering celebrates those who the park was built for,” Mr Brawley said.

“Students from Kingscliff High School will be providing entertainment on the day with some amazing young performers taking their first steps.

“We would encourage people to bring a blanket and a picnic lunch, or grab a takeaway from one of the local cafes, and enjoy some great entertainment.”

The performances will be the first held on the stage in the middle of the park, which will host many more community celebrations in the years to come.

The park has been named in honour of Rowan Robinson, a Kingscliff High School graduate and Cudgen Headland Surf Life Saving Club member who was killed in Afghanistan in 2011.

Members of his family and his commanding officer will attend the opening and have been invited to speak.

Work is continuing on the renovation of the Kingscliff Community Hall, on track to be completed by the end of May, while attention will also soon turn to the Lions Park area to the south of the surf club.

“The park and the holiday park were completed well ahead of schedule and I’m sure everybody in Kingscliff has enjoyed having access through to the beach as the summer winds down,” Mr Brawley said.

“The Lions Park upgrade will not be as extensive and will mainly involve the replacement of old furniture and shelters, better path connections and more shade.”

DrumMUSTER a must for farmers and residents

Farmers and residents in the Tweed Shire can bring their empty plastic and metal drums displaying the drumMUSTER logo along to the Stotts Creek Resource Recovery Centre for inspection and collection, Wednesdays between 7am – 12pm, except on public holidays.

All drums must be cleaned (in line with Agsafe Standard for Effective Rinsing of Farm Chemical Containers brochure available from chemical retail outlets) both inside and out – including caps and threads – and allowed to drain or air dry to ensure no rinse water or dry chemical residue remains.

Lids must be removed and steel drums punctured at the base.

Council has the right not to accept any items that do not meet this criteria and containers will remain the property of the chemical user.

Household chemicals – Tweed residents can take up to 20L of household chemicals to the permanent chemical collection facility at Stotts Creek Resource Recovery Centre for free, Monday to Fridays before 3pm.

To take unwanted chemicals to this facility, phone ahead on (02) 6670 7400 to advise what is being delivered and to ensure trained staff are available to accept the chemicals.

In the interest of safety, all items must be labelled or they will be rejected. Products such as pesticides, herbicides and poisons, solvents and household cleaners, pool chemicals, acids and alkalis and hobby chemicals are accepted.

These chemicals are sent away to be processed safely with some broken down and recycled for use in other products.

For more information, phone Council’s Waste Management Unit (02) 6670 2400.

Clothiers slip fix near

Work to repair the major landslide on Clothiers Creek Road will start on Monday 30 April and last for about five weeks, weather permitting.

The existing 4.5-tonne weight limit on the road will remain in force until the repairs have been completed.

The one-lane traffic flow through the slip area will remain under the management of the temporary traffic lights that have been in place since the March 2017 flood. Motorists should expect delays of up to 10 minutes between traffic light changes at times.

Contractor Australian Marine and Civil Pty Ltd will drill large soil nails into the down slope embankment and then apply shotcrete to stabilise the slope before repairing the road and replacing the guardrail.

Workers will be on site from 7am to 6pm Monday to Friday and from 7am to 3pm on Saturdays.

The old and the new. The final section of timber boardwalk will be replaced with a concrete shared-user path.

Final plank in upgrade

The final stage of a $520,000 upgrade to the Cudgen Creek boardwalk, from Sunrise Cove to Cloughs Lane, will start on 1 May 2018.

The boardwalk is being replaced with a concrete shared-user path, which will be safer for pedestrians and cyclists as it will be less prone to becoming slippery plus will require less maintenance.

The first section of the boardwalk, from the emergency services boat ramp to Sunrise Cove, was upgraded in 2015.

The original wooden boardwalk was built by the developer of residences along that section of foreshore and has reached the end of its life. Restoration of the original structure was cost prohibitive so replacement with a concrete pathway was the best option for maintaining a continuous creekside pathway for residents and visitors to the area.

Pedestrians and cyclists will be directed to detour around the construction site via Vulcan Street and through the Cudgen Foreshore Park. Detour signs will be placed at Marine Parade and adjacent to the Kingscliff Bridge.

The upgrade is expected to be completed by the end of September.

New policy on exhibition

A draft policy addressing the issue of private memorials being installed in public spaces is now on exhibition with Tweed residents invited to provide comment.

The Draft Private Memorials in Public Parks and Natural Areas Policy would, in its current form, see memorial plaques which have been placed in areas such as headlands and parks without Council permission be removed.

The policy would still allow for individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the Tweed community to be memorialised with plaques or other monuments with Council approval.

Tweed Shire Council Director Community and Cultural Services Tracey Stinson said the Draft Policy is an important step towards establishing consistency.

“While at this time we are talking about relatively few monuments we are aware it is important to address this issue before it becomes a more common practice,” Ms Stinson said.

“We do understand people’s wish to memorialise loved ones however to ensure equity and consistency in how this is managed there needs to be an approval process.

“There are a large number of people, both residents and visitors to our shire, who wish to enjoy the natural environment in an unaltered state and allowing these memorials to spread across these much loved natural areas is not appropriate.

“There are many ways to create a memorial where it will not be an issue for others including planting a tree or garden or some sort of tribute on private property.”

Roadside tributes are covered by a separate policy which allows them as long as they are regularly maintained and will not be affected by this Draft Policy.

The Draft Policy has been placed on exhibition for 60 days, during which time anyone is welcome to make a comment which will be considered prior to a final policy being adopted.

Border Art entries at M-Arts

The Tweed Regional Gallery & Margaret Olley Art Centre is issuing a last call for regional artists who may wish to take advantage of two significant opportunities to promote their work.

The Border Art Prize will be on again from 25 May to 15 July 2018 and applications are also being accepted from locals who wish to exhibit at the gallery over the next two years under the Community Arts Access Program (CAEP).

Gallery Director Susi Muddiman said this year's Border Art Prize Exhibition will be held across two venues, Tweed Regional Gallery and M-Arts Precinct in Murwillumbah.

"By extending the Border Art Prize into the M-Arts Precinct in downtown Murwillumbah we are enabling more artists to have their work shown to eager audiences which is something we are very excited about," Ms Muddiman said.

"Both spaces will be treated with the same high professional standard that is associated with Tweed Regional Gallery, with works distributed equally across both locations."

The aim of the CAEP, which has been running since the Gallery relocated to its current site on Mistral Road in 2004, is to provide regional artists with a professional venue for exhibitions of new work.

Miss Muddiman said the gallery remains committed to supporting regional artists, and the CAEP is considered an important part of the Gallery's operation.

"Many local artists have mounted their first solo exhibition under the CAEP, which offers a valuable exercise in professional development while raising their profile in the regional community and beyond," she said.

Both emerging and established artists are encouraged to submit proposals according to the application guidelines.

Entries for the Border Art Prize close Friday 20 April 2018. See www.artgallery.tweed.nsw.gov.au/awardsandprizes for entry details.

Applications for CAEP exhibitions are due by Monday 30 April 2018. See artgallery.tweed.nsw.gov.au/InformationForArtists for details of how to apply.
