

A blue-green algal bloom at the Bray Park Weir is largely because the river flow has been severely reduced due to the lack of rain.

Dam water release to improve flow

Water releases from Clarrie Hall Dam began last week to ensure continued supply to the Tweed as the Bray Park Weir level drops up to 40mm further every day without rain.

The dam currently sits at 98 per cent full but the weir water level has dropped to 230mm below the weir crest and that has led to the need to release water from Clarrie Hall Dam.

The water release from the dam is designed to ensure continued supply to meet the demand for raw water at Bray Park Water Treatment Plant.

However, the water release will have little or no effect on a blue-green algal bloom which has currently affected the weir. Some customers may detect an unpleasant musty or earthy smell and taste to the water but are assured it is safe to drink.

"The smell will be most noticeable in hot water and confined spaces, such as the shower room, but remains well within the Australian Drinking Water Guidelines and poses no risk to human health," Manager Water and Wastewater Anthony Burnham said.

Anyone experiencing an unpleasant smell or taste to their drinking water is asked to contact Council on (02) 6670 2400 to assist Council to monitor the situation.

The blue-green algal bloom at the weir is largely because the river flow has been severely reduced due to a lack of rain and hot weather. In addition, the blue-green algae benefits from the warmer water temperature and still water conditions.

The continuing hot dry weather also has resulted in insufficient river flows to hold back a potential saltwater tidal overtopping of the weir next week.

Council was due to deploy a temporary concrete block barrier across the full width of the weir wall last Friday to protect against a predicted overtopping event on Tuesday and Wednesday, 22 and 23 January respectively (dates correct at the time of going to print).

"The predicted tide is forecast to be higher than the weir crest so we will barrier off the weir wall to prevent any salt water entering the weir and contaminating our raw water supply.

"Once the risk passes, we will remove the temporary barrier, possibly by Friday this week," Mr Burnham said.

At an Extraordinary Meeting of Council last Thursday, it was resolved:

1. Notes our continuing concerns about the process undertaken for the preliminary works being utilised by Health Infrastructure as it is Council's view that these works should have been undertaken as part of a State Significant Development Application.
2. Does not proceed with seeking further legal advice or pursuing legal action at this stage.
3. Refers this matter to the NSW Ombudsman for review of the process undertaken by Health Infrastructure.

Data resource hub open

Tweed Shire Council has launched a Tweed Shire Open Data Hub, giving public direct access to selected non-private spatial data managed by Council.

Open data is information that can be freely used, shared and built-on by anyone, anywhere, for any purpose.

The Open Data Hub includes spatial data such as land and roads, fauna corridors and vegetation, community facilities such as sporting fields, playgrounds, public toilets, waste collection, footpaths, cycleways and Council buildings.

Much of this information is currently available for access via the Tweed Maps Online portion of Council's website. The Open Data Hub extends this access by allowing developers to directly download this spatial data for inclusion in their own applications.

Council's Information Technology Manager, Kenneth Holdsworth said the release of the spatial data was in line with the NSW Government's Open Data Policy to increase public access to government information.

"We're hoping to encourage innovative solutions with social, economic and environmental benefits, while demonstrating Council's commitment to transparency and accountability," Mr Holdsworth said.

"The Open Data Hub has endless possibilities because it enables people to create their own social or business applications.

"For example, playgroups can use the data to map playgrounds with facilities that best suit their individual needs.

"The data can also be used to inspire and develop many business opportunities for local entrepreneurs.

"If people are thinking about launching a new business this year, the Open Data Hub provides invaluable local market intelligence," he said.

To access the Tweed Shire Council Open Data Hub visit www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/Mapping

Film in focus at Museum

If you watch Aquaman on the big screen these school holidays, you might be surprised to hear that part of it was filmed in the Tweed.

The headland at Hastings Point was used as a location to film pivotal scenes in the movie where a life-sized house and lighthouse was constructed on the site. The Tweed Regional Museum was gifted props from the set by Warner Bros Studios for their permanent collection.

See if you can spot the local landmark in the film and then head down to the Museum for a closer look at some of the objects from the Hastings Point set.

The Museum is a large, air conditioned and family-friendly space with lots of displays and interactive activities for the kids – and best of all, it's free!

Find out why Murwillumbah is the perfect place to spend a day out with all the family at www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/Holidays

Recognise this house from the blockbuster Aquaman? The set was constructed on the headland at Hastings Point.

Museum visitors Lucia and Sienna marvel at the props from the film Aquaman, which have found a home at Tweed Regional Museum in Murwillumbah.

Museum staff have spent six months refurbishing the shed and interpreting its rich history which is now once again on display for a new generation of visitors to enjoy.

Living river history at Boyds' Shed

The Tweed Regional Museum has recently re-opened the iconic Boyds' Shed, built by the Boyd family on the banks of Terranora Inlet in 1906.

Boyd ancestors were among the earliest cedar getters on the Tweed in the 1840s, and there are several local landmarks named after the family.

Many locals remember the Boyd Brothers and the red fishing shed which originally stood on the shores of Boyds' Bay at Tweed Heads.

The shed was the base for the family's commercial fishing operations from the 1920s to the 1960s and also became well known as a place for social gatherings.

It was moved to the current site in 1996 to save it from the encroachment of Kennedy Drive.

The heritage-listed building is the last remaining fishing shed in the area and together with the original Tweed Heads Court House and the Deck House, makes up the Tweed Regional Museums' Tweed Heads branch at Pioneer Park on Kennedy Drive, Tweed Heads West.

Museum staff have spent six months refurbishing the shed and interpreting its rich history which is now once again on display for a new generation of visitors to enjoy.

Film footage displayed in the shed depicts hauls of mullet netted off local beaches in the 1950s, much to the delight of holiday crowds, alongside contemporary video interviews documenting stories of the Boyds' fishing exploits.

Memories of the shed itself, including the process of relocating it and photographs from the Boyd family archives, are also included in new displays.

Museum Director Judy Kean said the shed had lost none of its atmosphere and charm.

"While inside enjoying displays, it's impossible not to smell the sea and hear the water lapping against the pylons and the sound of passing boats – not to mention spotting fish and stingrays swimming in the shallows out the back windows," Ms Kean said.

The Tweed Heads branch of the Museum is open every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Sunday from 10am to 4pm (NSW time). For more information visit museum.tweed.nsw.gov.au

Public notice

Opening of new pedestrian access road to Mooball National Park at Cudgera Creek

The new pedestrian access road from Cudgera Creek Road to the Mooball National Park at Cudgera Creek is now open to the public. The diagram below shows the area of road now closed and in private ownership and the new section of dedicated public road available for public pedestrian access only and prohibits access to all and any motorised vehicles.

The formal closure of the affected section of Wabba Road was published in the Government Gazette on Friday 11 January 2018.

The adjoining land owner has, at their own cost, constructed the new road to allow continued public access to the Mooball National Park. The construction of the new road was not a Council requirement and was completed by the land owner as an act of good will toward the local community and members of the public at large who wish to utilise this access to the National Park.

Council appreciates the commitment of the adjoining land owner to ensuring the long term goals of the public were met and access to the Mooball National Park created through a more adequate and accessible pathway.

- Easement for public pedestrian access to Mooball National Park
- Newly dedicated non-vehicular public pedestrian road reserve
- Road closed and in private ownership – no public access

Tweed Shire Council wishes to recognise the generations of the local Aboriginal people of the Bundjalung Nation who have lived in and derived their physical and spiritual needs from the forests, rivers, lakes and streams of this beautiful valley over many thousands of years as the traditional owners and custodians of these lands.
