

Tweed Shire Council wishes to recognise the generations of the local Aboriginal people of the Bundjalung Nation who have lived in and derived their physical and spiritual needs from the forests, rivers, lakes and streams of this beautiful valley over many thousands of years as the traditional owners and custodians of these lands.

Level 2 water restrictions have been introduced at Tyalgum because of the small supply in Tyalgum Weir and low flows in the Oxley River.

Water wasters push consumption up

On average, Tweed residents are using 214 litres of water per person per day, which is 54 litres too much.

Level 2 drought water restrictions have been introduced at Tyalgum and the wider Tweed is put on notice of impending restrictions in the New Year if it doesn't rain soon.

It is just over 12 months since Tyalgum residents were last asked to 'Save water now' to make the small supply in Tyalgum Weir and low flows in the Oxley River last as long as possible before Tweed Shire Council has to begin carting water to the village.

Given past drought experience, Tyalgum residents will likely be on the harshest level of restrictions – level 4 – within two to four weeks as the Tyalgum supply typically drops very quickly.

In the wider Tweed area, which is supplied by water from the Tweed River supplemented by releases from Clarrie Hall Dam in times of low river flow, it is just on 12 months since the last water restrictions were imposed.

Clarrie Hall Dam is falling at 1.6% a week and is likely to drop to 90% early in the New Year, resulting in bans of water sales outside the shire and triggering Council's 'Save water now' campaign.

When water restrictions were imposed in 2019, the average consumption figure was 194 litres per person per day. This time it's 214 litres per person per day.

"That number speaks for itself and is shouting 'water waste'," Manager Water and Wastewater Operations Brie Jowett said.

Keep safe – free defensive cycling training course

Council is supporting a free full-day training for riders to learn the fundamentals of defensive riding and urban cycling.

Developed for beginner to intermediate riders aged 16 years and over, the free training is designed to promote safe and responsible cycling and reduce the risk of crashes for those who regularly ride in traffic.

Tweed Shire Council's Road Safety Officer Alana Brooks said the training covers the fundamentals of defensive urban cycling.

"These including an overview of the road rules, route planning, anticipating dangers and what to do in an emergency or hazardous

"To see just what 214 litres of water look like, it's about 1½ bathtubs full for every man, woman and child every day."

Mrs Jowett acknowledged that many people do not use anywhere near 214 litres a day but said the reality was that water restrictions don't discriminate between the water wise and the water waster.

"As a community, we all face the same prospect that if we continue to waste water at today's usage rate, our limited supply of water will not last long at all.

"We ask everyone to take our target of 160 litres per person per day very seriously and act now to save water for tomorrow."

Water carting has been banned from both the Tyalgum and Uki supplies for more than a year.

Council is continuing work to improve long-term water security to meet the needs of Tweed residents into the future, but the types of major projects involved take a long time to deliver. Raising the wall of Clarrie Hall Dam is still some 5 years away if everything goes smoothly. Until then, in dry times, the Tweed is reliant on the limited storage capacity we have.

Visit www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/waterrestrictions for more information on drought water restrictions.

situation," Ms Brooks said.

"Attendees will also learn bike maintenance skills."

The training will be presented by qualified trainers from Cycle Away on behalf of Transport for NSW.

It will be held on Saturday 12 December from 9am to 3pm at the Tweed Heads Civic and Cultural Centre, corner of Brett and Wharf streets, Tweed Heads.

Strictly limited places are available and bookings are essential. Go to <https://bit.ly/defensivecyclingtraining> to make a booking.

River health grants for rural landowners

Tweed Shire Council is seeking expressions of interest from rural landowners who are interested in improving the health of waterways in the Terranora – Cobaki Broadwater catchments areas, to help protect the Tweed's internationally significant environment.

Funding is available to address typical problems in Duroby, Bilambil, Piggabeen and Cobaki creeks and their tributaries including bank erosion, lack of riparian vegetation and stock impacts.

The Tweed Waterways Report 2020 has identified these waterways have slipped in water quality from last year.

Exhibition is a Game Changer

Tweed Regional Museum's newest temporary exhibition Game Changer brings a special collection of tabletop games out of one local collector's home, and on show as part of the Collectors' Cabinet series.

Nat Kloet has been collecting games since she was a child and in the last few years has turned her passion into a career, opening Cracklepoint Games in Murwillumbah in 2018.

Nat grew up in Maryborough, Queensland, and got into games when she was a small child. She kept the games that held an emotional connection and her collection grew from there.

In 2015 Nat became more focused on collecting and in 2018 she opened her games shop and turned her collecting into a career. More than a games shop, Nat has created a mecca for local gamers, a place to try out new products and meet to play games as a community.

"I had so many games at home that I wanted to share and help a like-minded community develop – one that I didn't know was there until I opened the door," Nat said.

Her eclectic collection includes games from her childhood, games that have connections to her Dutch ancestry, Australian prints of international games and modern designer games developed in Japan.

Tweed Regional Museum Curator Erika Taylor said: "This is a very special opportunity to see a brilliant collection of vintage and modern games. Recently there has been a resurgence of interest in these types of games, particularly this year as we all had to endure COVID-19 lockdowns and were looking for safe indoor activities. Nat's collection is sure to delight young and old."

Game Changer is on exhibition at Tweed Regional Museum Murwillumbah from 8 December until March 2021. For more information visit the Museum's website museum.tweed.nsw.gov.au

Contractors may need to enter your property

Tweed Shire Council advises residents in Tweed Heads, Kingscliff and Murwillumbah that contractors may be working in those areas before Christmas to reline sewer mains.

Contractor Abergeldie has been engaged to reline 9 km of sewer main using PVC liners.

Every year Council relines up to 10 km of sewer main to restore it to near new condition and add 50 years to its useful life to meet the needs of Tweed residents now and into the future. Council manages more than 800 km of sewer main.

Abergeldie staff will need to enter private properties to access the sewers in many cases. Elsewhere, they will be working on the nature strips and road reserves.

If Abergeldie needs to come on to your property, they will knock on your door two days beforehand or drop a notice in your letterbox if you are not at home.

They may have to return to your property several times to complete the job as they first have to clean the sewer pipe, photograph the internal pipe wall and then reline the pipe.

All Abergeldie contractors can be identified by the company logo on their hard hats and company name on their shirts.

The work will continue until June 2021.

The River Health Grants program is entirely voluntary.

No stream is too small to be considered under the program and there is no requirement for permanent flow. However, a minimum bank length of 100 metres will generally be considered for funding.

Projects that lead to a reduction in nutrients and sediments entering the waterways will be prioritised. Eligible activities include river bank fencing, stock drinking troughs, revegetation and bush regeneration, weed control and erosion stabilisation.

Jasmine is people's choice

The young poets have performed and the people have spoken (or at least voted) for their favourite in the 2020 Youth Poetry Slam. The event was supported by Tweed Shire Council to create opportunities for the community to be more inclusive.

The People's Choice Award for the Youth Poetry Slam 2020 has gone to Kingscliff High School student Jasmine Logan (pictured) whose poem about Black Lives Matter not only carried a very strong and timely message but also made a connection online.

As the People's Choice winner, Jasmine received a $50 book voucher from Boardwalk Books in Kingscliff.

Wildlife under threat as border road reopens

After months of closure, Tomewin Road from the Tweed Valley through to Currumbin has reopened and motorists are asked to be aware of wildlife crossing.

Council Biodiversity Planner/Project Officer, Sustainability and Environment Marama Hopkins said wildlife had grown accustomed to the lack of traffic on the road and were venturing out onto it more.

"Koalas are still really active and cross the road regularly. We know of at least 5 mums with joeys living near to the road and crossing regularly at Tomewin at the moment," Ms Hopkins said.

"We are asking motorists to slow down when driving in areas with low visibility and sharp corners as wildlife can come out from seemingly nowhere.

"Please take extra care during dawn and dusk and night time when wildlife are more active to protect Tweed's significant environment."

If you do accidentally hit or see an injured animal on the road, please phone the 24-hour Friends of the Koala rescue hotline on 02 6622 1233 or the 24-hour Tweed Valley Wildlife Carers rescue line on 02 6672 4789.

Great tips to save money this Christmas

With the festive season nearly here, there are a number of free online workshops which can help you save money, reduce waste and get a few new food and drinks ideas along the way.

The workshops are brought to you by NE Waste and Tweed Shire Council to create opportunities to be healthier and to reduce waste to protect our environment.

Each participant who attends a live workshop is eligible for a Food Smart gift. Sign up to Food Smart before the workshops at www.newwaste.org.au/foodsmart

Plan your shop and waste less

Thursday 10 December at 10am

Save money these holidays by not throwing out edible food (in NSW each week, approximately $70 worth is thrown out by every household). Make sure you plan for your shop, while cooking and storing food with intention.

Join meal planning expert, Susanne Thiebe from Less Mess and Love Food Hate Waste to find out:

- why food waste happens
- how to make 'no waste' an easy habit
- how to love your leftovers more
- what your meal planning personality is.

Fill out the pre-workshop questionnaire to get your personalised Meal Planning handout.

Parthenium weed (Parthenium hysterophorus) produces small innocuous flowers that can have negative health effects on humans and livestock. Source: Phil Blackmore

Have you seen this weed?

The recent discovery of the invasive parthenium weed on a Tweed property has prompted Rous County Council (RCC) to seek assistance from landowners to report any suspected occurrences of the weed.

RRC Weed Biosecurity Officers developed a Rapid Response Plan to minimise the impact of this weed following its detection and as a result, more than 80 properties were searched over a two-day period with the assistance of the Department of Primary Industry, Local Land Services and other local council Weed Biosecurity Officers in the region.

Fortunately, no additional sites were found outside of the affected property.

It is believed that several of the recent parthenium weed (Parthenium hysterophorus) infestations in NSW originated from contaminated organic chicken feed. RCC Weed Biosecurity Officers are undertaking tracebacks and are searching properties where the contaminated feed may have been purchased.

RCC are also seeking from Tweed residents that currently or have previously owned chickens to please familiarise themselves with parthenium weed and to check their properties. Areas to check for parthenium weed include backyard chook pens and any areas where chickens were fed.

Parthenium is known to cause respiratory and other health issues, so it is advised you exercise extreme caution if you suspect it is on your property.

Report immediately, move all livestock away from that area and do not attempt to remove any plants yourself.

If you suspect parthenium weed growing on or near your property, please immediately contact Rous County Council on 02 6623 3800 or email council@rous.nsw.gov.au

You can also report online at www.rous.nsw.gov.au/reportaweed or call the DPI Weed Helpline on 1800 680 244. Find out more at www.rous.nsw.gov.au/weeds

Rous County Council is Tweed Shire's biosecurity control authority for weeds, working to protect and enhance the Tweed's internationally significant environment.

Proposed naming of road in subdivision

Tyalgum water customers

Save water now

Level 2 water restrictions apply effective from midnight Sunday 6 December 2020.

Under Section 141 of the Water Management (General) Regulation 2018, Tweed Shire Council implemented level 2 water restrictions in the Tyalgum water supply area effective from midnight on Sunday 6 December 2020.

A letter has been sent to all properties connected to the Tyalgum water supply explaining the level 2 water restrictions.

The level 2 water restrictions are outlined on Council's website at www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/waterrestrictions

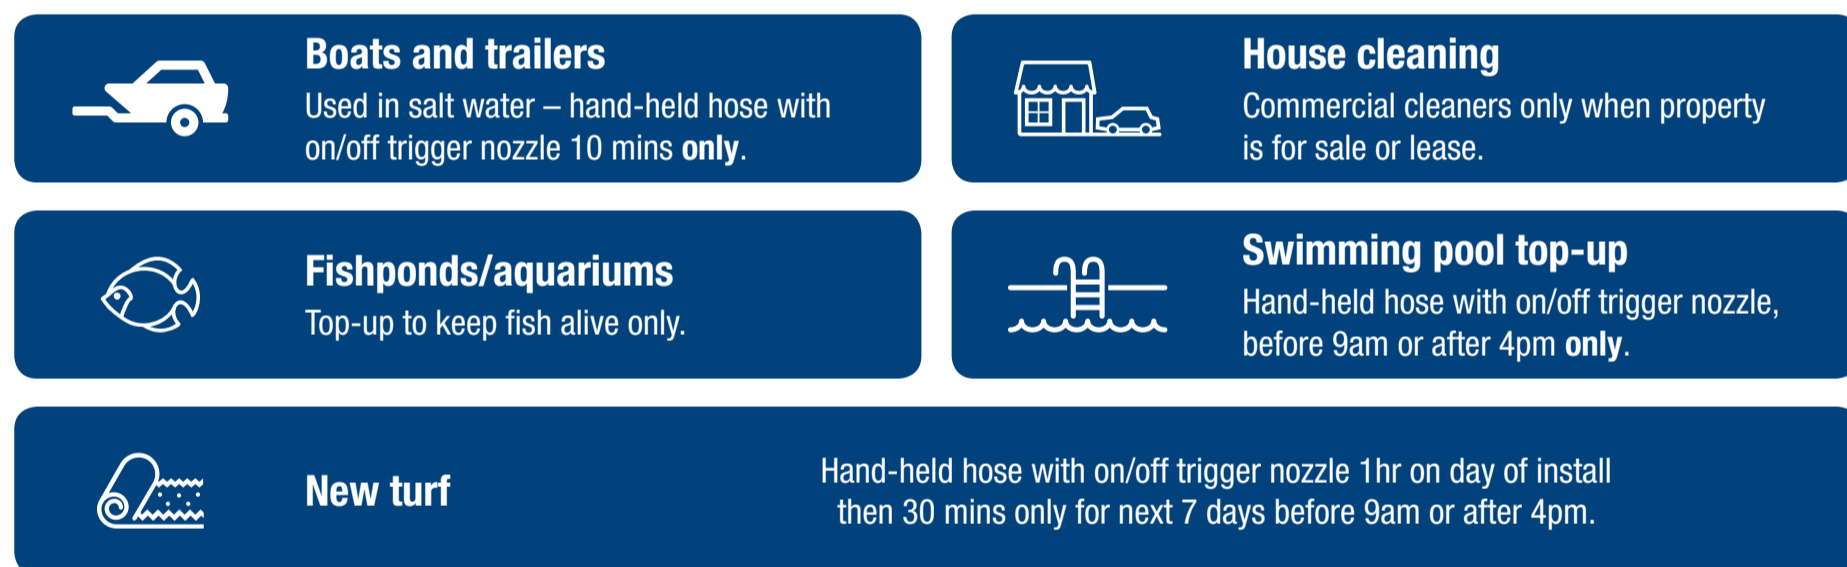

These restrictions were authorised by Tweed Shire Council General Manager Troy Green.

Level 2 residential restrictions – what's ok and what's not.
