

Cane toads (Bufo marinus) are infiltrating the Tweed (main) and inset, a bucket of toads collected at a recent toad busting event.

Recent cane toad busting a success

Now that we are well and truly into cane toad season, it's time to make an impact on toad populations in the Tweed.

The recent cane toad busting online event was a success with 10 groups participating and 909 cane toads removed from the environment (preventing anywhere from 3,636,000 to 31,815,000 future tadpoles).

The winning team was The Small School from Murwillumbah who collected 388 cane toads. In second place, the Toad Toasters from Terranora collected 210 toads and the Horseshoe Hunters from Terranora came third with 80 toads in their buckets. Well done to all the teams who participated.

Cane toad drop-off points

As part of a collaboration between Tweed Shire Council and Watergum, a number of community cane toad drop-off points are being set up throughout the Tweed.

These points will serve as a place where members of the public can take cane toads they have captured to be stored and then used by Watergum to create tadpole lures. Live or frozen toads are both accepted.

The first cane toad drop-off point is in Pottsville with the help of a local community member, Mercedes. Mercedes will be hosting a fridge/freezer as well as harvesting the toxin glands for lure production. If you have cane toads to drop off, please text or call Mercedes on 0417 638 896.

The regular drop-off days and times are Wednesdays between 5 and 7 pm or Saturdays from 1 to 4 pm (please text or call first).

It is important to note that cane toads treated with any type of chemicals cannot be accepted as Watergum will not be able to use them for producing tadpole lures. It also violates their humane euthanasia policy.

If you are planning to go out and conduct a big toad busting session, it might be an idea to let Mercedes know in advance so she can confirm that there is space in the fridge/freezer.

If you are interested in hosting a community drop-off point yourself, please get in contact with Watergum for more details on canetoads@watergum.org

Help shape how we manage local growth and housing

Expressions of interest are now open for a Project Reference Group that will provide impartial information, advice and views to Council and guide the development of a Growth Management and Housing Strategy for the Tweed.

As the fastest growing local government area in Northern NSW, it is important that housing and employment opportunities are planned in a way that supports the local community and economy, protects the natural environment and maintains the scenic qualities that make the Tweed special.

"Housing and employment are diverse and complex land-use issues and we are looking for suitable people in the community to help Council consider important factors such as supply, affordability, type, location and ease of access to services and facilities," Director Planning and Regulation Vince Connell said.

"Understanding what the people of the Tweed want for the long term future of our Shire from the beginning of the process will help the pieces of the housing puzzle fit together in a way that best meets the community's needs."

People with relevant qualifications or experience in relevant government, housing or employment sectors; recognised representatives of relevant communities; or those with a direct and recognised interest in the future of housing and employment opportunities in the Tweed are invited to apply before 4 pm on 10 November 2021.

New homes for fish along Tweed Valley Way

Council is working to stabilise river bank erosion adjacent to Tweed Valley Way in Murwillumbah – and there's something else going on under the surface.

Due to limited space, it's not possible to plant trees between the traffic and the river, so habitat units are being installed to enhance the underwater environment for fish.

This is part of Council's Tweed River Management Program, aiming to ensure long term sustainability and balance between conflicting river uses. Council needs to protect the Tweed Valley Way, however this can have negative impacts on the river.

Wherever possible, the Waterways team are going the extra distance to minimise and offset the visual and ecological impacts of river protection works.

Find out more about how Council is protecting the Tweed's waterways at tweed.nsw.gov.au/waterways-coastline

Left: Lowering the fish habitat units into place. Inset, the fish habitat units are made of concrete and have a heavy base to ensure they will not be dislodged during floods. Complex structures such as this can provide cover for fish and other aquatic species.

Learn what technology can do for you

Technology is something which has always appealed to Salt resident Di Pitchfork.

Di is an avid user of her iPad and knows her way around the internet but admits there still a few things which she would like to learn.

She has enrolled in the latest Shop Don't Drop course which is commencing at Council's Tweed Heads South Community Centre.

The popular course, run through Community Services and supported by the Australia Government, offers training in the use of iPads for shopping, paying bills, staying connected with friends and family and how to navigate the Internet to pursue hobbies, interests or information and news.

"I have been using my iPad for about 4 years now and find it so handy and convenient," Di said.

"There is so much you can do – being able to use an iPad is like having a one-stop-shop which can help make life easier."

Salt resident Di Pitchfork loves her iPad and is keen to learn more through Council's Shop Don't Drop program.

Council Community Services Project Support Officer Lyn Porter said the course makes technology a little less daunting, especially for people who may not be familiar with it.

"There are 10 people per class, following COVID-19 guidelines and masks and social distancing are requirements," Ms Porter said.

"Our mentor is there to guide people every step of the way in a very supportive manner."

Ms Pitchfork said the best way to approach using new technology is to ask "what I am I trying to do?"

"When you sit and think through things logically, it all seems to fall into place," she said.

"Once you have an understanding of the internet processes which the Shop Don't Drop provides, you can access a whole new world."

"I use my iPad for everything from staying in touch with friends and family, to shopping, following the news, listening to the radio, gaining recipes, taking photos and enjoying my favourite music," she said.

The current morning and afternoon classes for Shop Don't Drop are fully booked however, new classes will be available at Tweed Heads South Community Centre in 2022.

Ms Porter said participants can bring their own device or use one provided which will be available to purchase at half price.

For information on future courses, contact Lyn Porter via email at communityservices@tweed.nsw.gov.au or call 07 5569 3110.
