

Tweed Shire Council wishes to recognise the generations of the local Aboriginal people of the Bundjalung Nation who have lived in and derived their physical and spiritual needs from the forests, rivers, lakes and streams of this beautiful valley over many thousands of years as the traditional custodians of these lands.

Many local kids got involved with an interactive mural installation during the Tweed Eco Festival adding their own ideas for creating an even more climate-resilient community.

Community spirit at Tweed Eco Festival

Community members from across the Tweed joined in the fun at the Tweed Eco Festival at Knox Park in Murwillumbah last weekend.

Council's program leader for climate change and sustainability Debbie Firestone coordinated the event and was pleased to see the benefits people gained from the event.

"It was a beautiful day, with around 500 people joining us throughout the day for music, markets, a chance to gather and an opportunity to share knowledge," Ms Firestone said.

"We've had great feedback from the community so far and were pleased to be able to bring an event like this to the community after a tough year in our region.

"Interestingly, three-quarters of people who filled in the event survey hadn't attended Council's previous sustainable living events before so it was great to see new people in the community embarking on a climate-ready journey.

"People were inspired to take action on ideas ranging from being more grounded and culturally connected to country, looking after themselves for better mental health, being better fire and flood prepared, boosting backyard gardens for veggies, wildlife and bees, planting the right trees for local biodiversity, saving water and using the right bins.

"One comment that summed up the day from an attendee was that they felt stronger from being part of a larger community. Together we're supporting each other and making a difference."

"We appreciate our project partners including the NSW State Emergency Services (SES), Australian Red Cross and NSW Rural Fire Service (RFS) for supporting the event, as well as the stallholders, speakers and performers who made it a great success."

The Tweed Eco Festival was a one-off event to help people take action to be ready for natural hazards, reduce their environmental footprint and work together for a sustainable future. The event was made possible by grant funding from the Australian Government.

Update on Anchorage Island Harbour boardwalk repair

The first section of work on the Jetties Boardwalk at Anchorage Island Harbour is now complete and work on the remaining sections will re-commence in January 2023.

The timber sub-structure of the jetties has been found to be in worse condition than was anticipated and will require additional materials to be purchased to allow completion.

Work on the Jetties Boardwalk is expected to be completed in March 2023 at which point repairs will commence on the Rotunda Boardwalk, the final stage of the project.

Fencing will be erected to ensure the site is safe and Council asks the community to avoid the area until work is complete.

Further information about the project is on the Your Say Tweed project page at yoursaytweed.com.au/anchorage-islands

Tweed takes out top state planning award

Tweed Shire Council's planning team has taken top honours at the prestigious 2022 NSW Awards for Planning Excellence, receiving the President's Award and a Commendation in the Planning for Country category.

The awards – announced at the Planning Institute of Australia (PIA) gala event in Sydney recently – were received in recognition of the launch earlier this year of Council's inaugural Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Town Planner Development Program.

Inspired by Melbourne-based Indigenous architect Jefa Greenaway, the program was developed in collaboration with Griffith University and the Tweed Byron Local Aboriginal Land Council and aims to increase the number of First Nations town planners in the Tweed and ultimately, Australia.

Under the program, successful First Nations students studying town planning at Griffith University are awarded a scholarship towards their tuition, as well as paid work experience equivalent to one day a week during their studies in Council's planning division.

The Planning Institute of Australia (PIA) is the peak national body representing town planning and the planning profession in Australia and represents approximately 5,000 members nationally and internationally.

The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Town Planner Career Development Program is supported by Griffith University's GUMURRII Student Success Unit and the Tweed Byron Local Aboriginal Land Council.

All about beach foam

Because it can have a strong smell, it's easy to mistake beach foam as sewage or other pollution.

To help keep the places we live, work and visit safe, Council has commissioned the Tweed Laboratory Centre to test beach foam and rule out sewage and other pollution.

Past samples have contained marine algae and other naturally occurring organic marine matter including proteins, fats and dissolved salts.

While beach foam occurs naturally, sometimes it may be potentially harmful with microbial and chemical contaminants, especially after heavy rain and floods.

Avoid touching and swimming in beach foam and keep your dog away.

Foam floating on sea water can hide underwater rocks from view. Beach foam tends to stay around for several days before gradually breaking down.

Farm field day reminder

Local graziers are invited to a free field day on Wednesday 30 November to learn more about stock watering systems and sustainable ways to better manage water across the farming landscape.

The series of field days and workshops for farmers held in recent years is one way Council is working together with the community to reduce its impact on the natural environment and adapt to climate change for a sustainable future.

The field day is supported by Tweed Shire Council, through funding from the Australian Government's Future Drought Fund.

Registrations are essential and places are limited. To find out more or register, visit tweed.nsw.gov.au/agriculture-farming

The field day for Tweed farmers will be hosted at a property at Pumpenbil, part of a larger project to build drought-resilient beef and dairy farms in the Tweed.

Free family fun day this Saturday

A free family fun day will be held this Saturday 19 November from 10 am to 12 pm at Recreation Ground, corner of Florence and Recreation Streets, Tweed Heads.

The event will include a barbecue, kids' activities and an opportunity for residents to share their ideas on the proposed design of the new park.

Share your feedback on the draft concept plan or register for the free event at yoursaytweed.com.au/recreationground

Park upgrades like these provide the Tweed community with more opportunities to be active and healthy, while building a vibrant community to live in and visit.

The Hub will close for the Christmas/New Year break with the last day Thursday 22 December. This will also be Service NSW's last day on site.

The Chinderah Donation Hub will be closed from the Friday 23 December, reopening on Monday, 16 January.

Scenic Drive

Contractor Australian Marine and Civil Pty Ltd (AMC), continues work on the major slip site on Scenic Drive with sections one and two now up to full height.

AMC is currently working on the site B stage 3 footing which included pouring of concrete and the laying of blocks.

The next stage of work, after completing the retaining structure, will involve the construction of pavements, kerb and guttering and then batter works.

On the eastern slip, site A, foundation works have commenced and this will be followed by building the retaining structure.

Once this is completed, work will then commence on pavement works, kerb and guttering, batter works, lighting and the installation of guard rails.

The road is open with a temporary one lane access to all vehicles under traffic control. There is no footpath or pedestrian access.

AMC's original time schedule is planned for all works to be completed by the end of March 2023.

Given good progress to date, work is highly likely to be finalised earlier (weather permitting).

Council will continue to provide updates as more information comes to hand.

For more information on these and other repairs, visit www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/flood-recovery-works

For other flood recovery progress and news visit tweed.nsw.gov.au/flood-recovery-update

Captain Cook Memorial and Lighthouse upgrade

A $6.1 million project to upgrade the Point Danger lookout precinct and Marine Rescue NSW headquarters is set to start in mid-November.

Captain Cook Memorial and Lighthouse will be closed while Council builds a safer and better space for Marine Rescue NSW and visitors to Point Danger Lookout.

To allow for construction, pedestrian access to the precinct will be restricted throughout the works and here will be fewer parking spaces in the northern car park. However, you can still sit and enjoy the views from the nearby grassed areas.

Weather permitting, the project remains on track to be completed by the end of September 2023.

This project is jointly funded by Tweed Shire Council, City of Gold Coast and 3 NSW Government funds: Restart NSW Regional Growth – Environment and Tourism Fund, Office of Environment and Heritage and Cross Border Commissioner's Infrastructure Fund.

Visit yoursaytweed.com.au/captain-cook-memorial for more information.

Never take the risk with asbestos

As November is National Asbestos Awareness Month, Council is urging the community to think smart and stay safe when it comes to renovating, with dangerous asbestos still found in thousands of homes across the region.

With at least one in three homes built in Australia before 1990 containing asbestos, Council is urging residents to always book a licensed professional to do an asbestos sample test or to consider purchasing an asbestos testing kit before making a start on any renovation works.

Asbestos test kits are available to purchase from the front desk at the Murwillumbah Civic Centre for $53.50.

For more information about asbestos management, visit tweed.nsw.gov.au/Asbestos or call (02) 6670 2400. Testing kits are available for purchase at the Murwillumbah Civic Centre.

To get a licence and a list of removalists, please contact SafeWork NSW on 13 10 50 or visit safework.nsw.gov.au/hazards-a-z/asbestos Weed Biosecurity: what does it mean and how can we all play a part?

In NSW, the Noxious Weeds Act 1993 has been replaced by The Biosecurity Act 2015. Under the Act we all have a shared responsibility to report weed biosecurity threats. Biosecurity risks pose a threat to our economy, community or environment. Weed biosecurity categorizes weeds into levels of risk, such as whether a landowner needs to prevent, eradicate or contain a risk.

Weeds that need to be prevented are weeds that are not yet in the area and have the potential for significant harm. Weeds that need to be eradicated are weeds that are here but still in low enough numbers and through early intervention can be eradicated. The community play an important part in weed biosecurity and can identify and raise biosecurity concerns so that officers can accurately map and gauge the spread of certain weed species.

There are three simple ways everyone can enact their biosecurity responsibility:

1. If you see an unfamiliar weed or have identified a priority weed report it immediately.
2. Think about what is growing in your own backyard. Minimise the risk of weed spread on your property and off. Learn the species that are local to you, and think twice before giving cuttings to a friend. Find out first whether the plant is a weed.
3. Manage biosecurity risks on your land. Set up a 7-day quarantine paddock for livestock or other animals before release. Be mindful of the spread of weed seed through any means (human, animal, machinery).

Rous County Council is your local control authority. Contact us today to report priority weeds.

For further information on priority weeds go to rous.nsw.gov.au or call (02) 6623 3800.
