Access champ chases Rio glory

Tweed Shire Access and Inclusion Awards organisers are celebrating confirmation the awards' patron, triathlete Bill Chaffey will complete at the Paralympics in Rio next month.

The multiple world champion is part of a five-member paratriathlon team for the Games, which was officially announced at a ceremony on the Gold Coast last week. Mr Chaffey became the awards patron last year and said his inclusion in the Paralympics team was another chance to "show what we are all capable of".

Tweed residents can celebrate their own champions by nominating individuals and groups for this year's Access and Inclusion Awards. Nominations are open until 30 September and can be submitted online at www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/AccessInclusionAwards. Printed copies are available at Council's Murwillumbah and Tweed Heads offices or by contacting Karen Collins on (02) 6670 2442 or 0426 230 194.

Nominate to help find water savings

Council is looking for eight people with an interest in finding ways to improve water efficiency and reduce the demand for water from Council's reticulated water supply.

Council has called for nominations from the public to establish a Community Reference Group to take its Water Efficiency and Demand Management program to the next level.

Council began implementing initiatives to reduce water use in 2008 and has achieved a significant reduction from more than 230 litres a person per day to 180 litres a person per day by 2013 – a saving of almost 22 per cent. It is now targeting 170 litres a person per day by June 2017.

"The task we would like the Community Reference Group to help us with is reviewing what we've done to date and identifying new initiatives that can save us that extra 10 litres a day per person," said Water Efficiency Engineer Elizabeth Seidl.

"It's not going to be easy to achieve these further savings as we already have made the quick wins, so we are looking for people with not only a keen interest in water efficiency but with some experience or knowledge in that area."

The group will work within Terms of Reference provided by Council and be guided in its work by a water consultant.

"At the end of the day, we are seeking to recommend to Council evidence-based water-saving initiatives that can achieve significant water savings at a reasonable cost," said Ms Seidl.

Paddlers dip in Kayakers, canoeists and other paddlers are invited to provide their input for plans to install a launch facility for non-powered vessels on the Tweed River.

A community survey was launched by Council this week to find out about the places people like to paddle and the facilities they would like to see provided.

Col Wiley Park at Byangum has been identified as the site for the launch facility for a number of reasons, including the access it provides to the Tweed and Oxley Rivers.

"In addition, the waterways at that location are limited to non-powered vessels, so it's an ideal site for canoeing," Council's Project Officer – Coastal, Matt Lee, said.

"We have produced two concept designs for the launch, which would make it safer and easier for people to get canoes and other non-powered vessels in and out of the river," Mr Lee said.

"We are engaging with a number of groups to discuss the two designs and other options. But we also want to hear from other people about the facilities they think are important for a launch and the surrounding site.

"We'd like feedback from the full spectrum of potential users, from regular paddlers to those who would be keen to get involved if there were better facilities."

The community survey can be completed online by visiting www.yoursaytweed.com.au. Printed copies are available at Council's offices in Murwillumbah and Tweed Heads.

For further information, contact Matt Lee on (02) 6670 2767.

Steel liners stand by

Bad weather at the end of last week delayed the contractor's plans to begin driving the steel liners (above) that provide the formwork for the concrete piles into the Cudgen Creek bed at Kingscliff. The temporary piles in the centre of the creek were successfully bedded earlier in the week, allowing a temporary work platform to be constructed out into the channel to support the piling rig. All underwater demolition of the old bridge has been completed. The steel liners will be driven 26 metres below the old road level and will remain in-situ after the concrete piles are poured. Each of the 10-metre-long steel liner sections weighs 2.8 tonne.

Sad end for Osprey chicks

Three Eastern Osprey chicks died early last Thursday morning when their artificial nest fell to the ground from a tower next to Cudgen Creek at Kingscliff, despite the best of intentions to protect them.

National Parks and Wildlife Service (NPWS) officers and community members had alerted Council to the noticeable lean on the pole supporting the nest over the last few months, however eggs were already in the nest.

"We were unable to repair the structure until these chicks had left the nest as they would have been put in danger by any works. Unfortunately, strong winds proved too much for the metal cradle holding the nest and it fell," Council's Senior Program Leader - Waterways, Tom Alletson, said.

Community member Faye Hill is coordinator of the Tweed Osprey Monitoring Group, whose members keen an eye on local ospreys nesting sites.

"It's an absolute tragedy. We've been monitoring this nest for many years," Ms Hill said.

"We had been alerted but were unable to do anything more to protect the chicks."

Mr Alletson said Council's role was to work with NPWS to facilitate Osprey nest sites, with the cooperation of Essential Energy.

"Artificial structures have been used for many years for nesting to discourage the birds from nesting on inappropriate structures such as active power poles," he said.

"They would naturally nest on large, old dead trees but these have all but been lost from the landscape," he said.

Council is working to develop a program of inspection of known breeding sites. There are 22 across the Tweed, of which 21 are on artificial structures, such as on power poles.
