Avoid Kennedy Drive

Motorists are urged to avoid Kennedy Drive, between the bridge over Cobaki Creek and Limosa Road, for the next two weeks as road reconstruction works are in full swing and there will be frequent and long delays.

This final task will mark the end of five years of roadworks and full delivery of a $9 million upgrade to Kennedy Drive from the bridge to the Pacific Motorway. Ancillary works will continue but these will be off the roadway and have little or no impact on traffic flow.

Weekdays from Monday 24 October through to 6pm on Monday 7 November, stop/slow flagmen will be giving priority to trucks removing and delivering materials to and from the worksite. Truck movements will begin at 7am each weekday, finishing no later than 6pm each evening.

More than 3000 tonne of excavated materials will need to be trucked from the worksite to the nearby Gray Street depot, with trucks forming a continuous loop from 7am to 12 noon each day.

Then, from 12.30pm to no later than 6pm, trucks will be bringing in the same amount of asphalt from the manufacturing plant at Burleigh Heads to rebuild the road and that asphalt has to be applied while still hot. Trucks are expected to be arriving every 15–20 minutes.

While one lane in each direction will remain open throughout this final upgrade task, motorists who cannot clear the worksite between the bridge and Limosa Road by 7am should expect frequent and long delays.

They also can expect to move slowly through the worksite as they will be close to heavy machinery, working to the centreline on the southern half of the road before traffic is switched and the northern lanes are reconstructed.

Tomorrow, Wednesday (26 October), will be further congested as the southern lane of the bridge will be closed to allow a repair on the eastern approach. All traffic will move under the direction of stop/slow flagmen on the northern lane outside peak hours from 10am to 2pm.

“There’s no easy solution to easing the pain for motorists over the next two weeks except to urge them to use the alternate route via Bilambil and Terranora roads if they cannot travel early and clear the roadworks before 7am,” said Construction Engineer Bob Hanby. “And again, at the end of the day if their commute puts them on Kennedy before 6pm we advise them to go the alternate route.”

Voting this Saturday

Don’t forget to vote in the Tweed Shire Council Local Government Elections this Saturday (29 October). Polling booths open at 8am and close at 6pm.

There are 15 groups of candidates and four individual candidates vying for seven Councillor positions for the 2016-2020 term. Please note there is no vote for the Mayoral position – in the Tweed, the Mayor is selected by the Councillors.

All those on the Electoral Roll in the Tweed Shire Local Government area are required to vote and there are penalties for those who fail to do so. If you’re not sure if you are enrolled in Tweed, you can check by going to www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/Elections. The Tweed election is being conducted by the NSW Electoral Commission on Council’s behalf.

A Constitutional Referendum will also be held, with voters required to answer yes or no to the following question: “Do you support an increase in the number of Tweed Shire councillors from seven (7) to nine (9)?” If there is majority support, changes will take effect from the 2020 election.

If you are going to be away or unavailable on Saturday, there’s still time to place your pre-poll vote at Tweed Heads, Tweed Heads South, Murwillumbah or in Sydney. See www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/Elections for pre-poll locations, as well as the full list of candidates and information on how to vote.

It's double-Dutch at the Tweed Regional Gallery

The Dutch have had an enduring and profound influence on world art throughout the ages.

Now the local Dutch community has made a positive mark for art in the district, with a recent donation to the Tweed Regional Gallery & Margaret Olley Art Centre.

More than 1000 people last month attended a Dutch Australian Festival in Murwillumbah, celebrating 400 years since Dirk Hartog and his ship the Duifke reached Australia's west coast, the first arrival to the continent by Europeans.

Murwillumbah Anglican Church hosted two days of Dutch music, activities, displays and cuisine, as well as an official opening by Dutch Consul-General Willem Cosijn.

The promise of clogs, windmills, tulips and traditional clocks lured participants from throughout NSW, Queensland and further afield and raised a handsome sum that coordinators were keen to reinvest into the local community.

Its profits were split between the Gallery, Tweed Regional Museum, Tweed Palliative Support and Wedgetail Retreat and the You've Got a Friend support group providing meals for homeless and marginalised people.

Festival organisers Frank and Rosemary Gyzemyter last week visited the Gallery to make the donation and were given a guided tour.

Their tour guide, Gallery Director Susi Muddiman OAM, said the donation was a delightful surprise and would go towards acquiring a work by a regional artist.

Mr Gyzemyter, who stepped in to assist festival founder Martien Jansen in de Wal, said the event was so warmly embraced by the local community, organisers wanted to ensure the Tweed benefited from the event's success.

"The Gallery and Museum are both very important for culture in this area and we're really happy with can assist them with these donations," he said.

A significant milestone of the Kingscliff Bridge build was reached last Thursday as workers placed and fitted the 16 girders that will support the bridge deck. A 130-tonne crane is pictured lifting each of the near 18-tonne girders into place every 20 minutes after they arrive on trucks from the manufacturer in Brisbane. Bridge Gangers Wayne Lack (foreground at right) and Jonathan King (background at right) square off the third girder at each end before signalling to the crane driver to lower it into place. The bridge build is on track to be open to traffic before Christmas.

What's New

Along Came Henry author and star to visit Murwillumbah schools

Bev Larsson, author of the charming children's guide dog story Along Came Henry, will share her tale with Murwillumbah primary school students in a fun and interactive experience for Social Inclusion Week in November. Bev will bring along her best mate and star of the book, her guide dog Henry, to meet Year 1–2 children as she visits classrooms to read her story book, a beautifully illustrated book which shares the story of meeting Henry. The joint project – presented by The Belonging Project, Northcott and Tweed Shire Council – raises awareness about disability and diversity. The Belonging Project aims to help children with additional needs and their families to feel included and connected and is delivered by Northern Rivers Social Development Council.

Social Inclusion Week (21–29 November) provides fun activities to boost children's awareness and help ensure all Australians feel included and valued, giving everyone the opportunity to participate fully in society. A copy of Along Came Henry will be donated to each participating school and each student will receive an activity book they can share with their families to extend their understanding and community awareness of the benefits of inclusion.

Tweed Shire Access and Inclusion Awards nominations

This year's nominations are many and varied, unearthing a treasure store of accessibility champions in the Tweed community, ranging from tennis coaches and swim schools to banks, schools, cafes and patch workers. The 2016 awards have attracted a record number of nominees, including tennis coach Glen Bowe, Fingal Rovers Surf Life Saving Club & Juraki, Tweed Patchworkers, National Bank Murwillumbah, Peter Comerford from Tweed Sea Sports, Kids in Need, Uki Public School, Adult Community Education Murwillumbah, Billabong Swim School and Coffee Moves at Tweed City Shopping Centre.

The awards ceremony will be held on Wednesday 30 November in the Stars Room at Twin Towns. For more information or to RSVP for the event, contact Council on (02) 6670 2400 or at kcollins@tweed.nsw.gov.au

Long-awaited book launch

A long-awaited book about the Tweed Coast's natural history, compiled by many of the region's cultural and natural heritage authorities, will be launched at Bogangar's Les Burger Fields Hall this Saturday.

Specialists in culture, flora, fauna, geology and climate worked with local photographers, artists and graphic designers in a nine-year project to create The Fragile Edge, to define the area's unique cultural and natural heritage in a way that was visually compelling and easily understood.

A number of Tweed Shire Council staff volunteered their personal time to contribute their knowledge to many sections of the book, which has over 1000 images and a myriad of topics within its more than 400 pages.

"The Fragile Edge will be a great educational tool and Council, through its coastal committee, helped fund the book's production by pre-ordering copies to place in local schools and libraries, and for our own educational activities," Council's Natural Resource Management Co-ordinator, Jane Lofthouse, said.

Speakers and a video at Saturday's launch, starting at 3pm, will explain the content and making of the book, followed by a sausage sizzle.

View from the cloud now at your fingertips

Tweed environmental, planning and property information is now available at your fingertips with the re-launch of Council's smart phone and tablet-friendly mapping applications.

The new cloud-based web mapping tools replace Council's six-year-old Tweed Maps service and will provide easy to use, 24-hours-a-day access from a phone, tablet or computer.

Council Asset Management Officer Paul Calvino trialling the re-launched mapping tools that can now be accessed via smart phones and tablets.

Improvements have been made to the mapping websites to provide easy access to property information, planning details, flood zones and community services and facilities.

"These interactive mapping tools are really user-friendly and provide practical information for businesses and the community to access quickly and easily," Council's Manager, Information Technology, Ken Holdsworth said.

"At present, our customer contact centre fields a significant number of these enquiries by phone, this online service will help residents and businesses access Council resources 24 hours a day.

"This new section of the Council website allows residents, business operators and community groups to view geographic information, find features and points of interest, and print maps.

"Information such as property boundaries and development details, bushfire and flood zones as well as the locations of community parks and amenities, can all be viewed with the click of a button".

"Planning information such as zoning is also easily accessible, with colour-coded mapping allowing users to view zoning status at a glance."

The three mapping applications are:

- Property Information – property boundaries, imagery and contours, aerial photography.
- Planning – visualise and get information about planning constraints, bushfire prone land, flooding and also link to environmental data.
- Community Services. – public facilities, council parks, schools, community halls and amenities.

Tweed Maps and a step-by-step user guide can be accessed via www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/mapping

Annual exhibition to showcase flora and fauna

Many of the region's treasured plants, animals and landscapes are highlighted in an exhibition of Caldera Art 2016 finalists now on display at the Murwillumbah Visitors Information Centre.

Nearly 70 painters, photographers, printers and sculptures are featured in the annual exhibition, which was officially launched on Friday and will be on display at the centre's Caldera Art Gallery until 9 December.

Caldera Art showcases the work of artists concerned about the natural environment and facilitate sales of artwork and associated products to generate revenue for land care projects and artists.

It contributes to public awareness of regional biodiversity values and environmental conservation initiatives by conducting annual touring art exhibitions and events within the region.

Murwillumbah Visitors Information Centre is open 9am to 4.30pm every day except Sundays, when it opens 9.30am to 4pm.

For further information, visit calderaart.org.au

Big response to teeny-tiny tweed houses

Design innovation and sustainable living ideas will be in display at an exhibition of entries to a 'Tiny Homes' design competition, that can be seen at the Murwillumbah Council Chambers foyer from Monday 24 October – Friday 4 November, from 8.30am to 4pm.

This year's winner of the $1000 Professional Category on the theme of Tiny Homes: A Pocket Neighbourhood was Neeraja Peeret. Ms Peeret's winning design featured a pocket neighbourhood that enabled many people to live sustainably in small houses but with private and communal areas for residents to grow food and come together.

The judges were also impressed with a number of student entries, particularly from Kingscliff TAFE.

"It was fantastic to see so much innovation and creativity from our local design students," Council's Urban Designer and tiny house competition judge Jonathan Lynch said.

"The entries focused on key housing challenges and issues affecting our region including housing affordability, integration of sustainable and passive design measures and universal design."

In addition to the exhibition of Tiny House competition entries, Tweed Shire

Council has produced a Tiny House Fact Sheet which steps through some of the key design and planning considerations.

The Sustainable House Day – Tiny Homes Design Competition is a joint project by Tweed Shire Council, Lismore City Council, Byron Shire Council, Ballina Shire Council, The Green Building Centre, Nimbin Neighbourhood & Information Centre, North Coast TAFE, Self-Seed Sustainability and Dorrourby Environment Educational Centre.

Wildlife springing into action

Spring is here! The breeding season is well underway and the Tweed's native animals are on the move.

The warmer months of the year are always the busiest for Tweed Valley Wildlife Carers Inc. and the group is seeking volunteers to help rescue, rehabilitate and release wildlife.

Anyone interested in helping the group with this important work can call its hotline on (02) 6672 4789 and register for the Carers' next orientation day on Sunday 13 November.

Community garden space wanted

Organisers of a community garden in Murwillumbah are looking for a more permanent site and are calling for assistance from the community.

Passionate members of the Murwillumbah Community Garden Group are looking to build on their progress so far by moving to a more permanent location that is closer to the Murwillumbah town centre. Council has been supportive of the initiative and is assisting the group's efforts to relocate.

"The group is inspired to create a new community gardening space where all interested people are welcome to garden together," project coordinator Pam O'Connor said.

"Our group is hopefully at the beginning of its own growth spurt – we have started a campaign to attract new members and have begun identifying potential sites for a new garden."

Group members recently met with representatives of Council, Northern NSW Local Health District, The Family Centre and the Murwillumbah Community Centre to consider priorities and requirements for a new site.

There are already five community gardens in Tweed Shire, bringing residents together to grow and harvest healthy food, share knowledge about different gardening methods and recycling, help save and protect diverse plants and seeds.

Council's Sustainability Program Leader, Deb Firestone, said: "Council is excited about this campaign to establish a new space to build community interest and knowledge in gardening and improve community health and wellbeing."

For more information phone Pam O'Connor on 0401 605 023 or Deb Firestone on (02) 6670 2555.

Library activities

Murwillumbah Library's new series of Thursday craft afternoons for kids continues with a Grassy Heads activity on 3 November at 3.30pm.

Celebrating the first anniversary of the Library's seed library, participants will get to make a Grassy Head character to take home and watch its hair grow. For children aged 8 and over and bookings are essential.

On Wednesday 2 November at 4.45pm Steve Maginnity from The Australian Native Bee Company will speak about keeping native bees, what you need to start and how they help gardens. Books are essential.

A seed and plant swap, chat and morning tea will be held at the Library on Thursday 3 November at 10am.

For more information phone Murwillumbah Library on (02) 6670 2427.
